General Says Situation Now Most Critical Nation Has Ever Faced.

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON—A $42,820,003,606 army supply bill—largest in history—was sent to the house by its appropriations committee today to finance an army with a strength of 4,500,000 by July 1, 1943, and to send war material to other United Nations.

The measure amounted in itself to more than this country's direct outlay for the World war, and would boost to $205,141,039,537 the total authorized or appropriated for defense and war in the last three years.

The committee explained the necessity for the expenditures by quoting Lieutenant General J. T. McNarney, the army's deputy chief of staff:

"The war department regards our present situation as the most critical which this country has ever encountered."

It included $11,316,898,910 for 23,550 planes and spare parts. Army chiefs and the committee joined in assuring congress that the allotment would complete the war department's part of President Roosevelt's production program, calling for 60,000 planes this year and 125,000 in 1943.

In a transcript of carefully edited testimony made public by the committee, General McNarney declared that the "army's every effort is being directed to making our power felt by offensive action in consonance with the accepted basic strategy of the United Nations."

Giant four-motored U. S. army bombers, winging 500 miles across one of the world's toughest flying routes, were reported bolstering Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's armies in China today amid indications of a slightly improved but still critical outlook on the Chinese fighting front.

"The Japanese have taken a number of cities from us," a Chinese army spokesman said, referring to the campaign in East China.

Scrap Rubber Collection In City, County Near 100 Tons

Richland county's scrap rubber collection rolled along today with the total collection to date reaching the figure of approximately 100 tons—half of the amount set as the goal by the county scrap rubber campaign committee.

C. L. Hartenfels, chairman of the committee, reported that collections from filling stations in and near Mansfield to date totaled 122,863 pounds—or approximately 61 tons. Another 20,000 pounds has been collected in Shelby, and collections in other communities of the county brought the total figure to date to the 100-ton mark, it was estimated.

Hope was expressed that collection will reach a peak during the final days of this week. It was believed that firms and individuals amassed the scrap in the early days of the drive and now are preparing to turn it in to filling stations.

Leaders Say They Seek Early Attack on Enemy; China Subject of Session.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill of Britain centered their attention today on the vital problem of shipping as they went ahead with the mapping of plans for the United Nations war strategy.

They summoned shipping experts of the two governments to a White House conference which was described as one of the most important of the series the chief executive and prime minister have been holding for the last five days.

The White House permitted the disclosure also that Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill had conferred yesterday with Dr. T. V. Soong, China's foreign minister, who has been in this country for some time. Presidential Secretary Stephen Early said it was "quite an extended conference."

"The subject was, of course, China, in a military sense," Early said.

The presidential secretary said "that today's major parley 'will be on the subject of shipbuilding and ship use.' It was he who said the meeting was one of the most important yet held."

Meeting with the president and prime minister were Harry L. Hopkins, a principal adviser to the president in the field of supplies; Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, head of the war shipping administration and co-chairman of the combined Anglo-American shipping board; Sir Arthur Salter, British chairman of the board; Lt. W. Douglas, deputy war shipping administrator; Rear Admiral Howard L. Vickery, the maritime commission's ship construction authority; Admiral Sir Charles Little, member of the Anglo-American combined chiefs of staff; and Admiral J. W. Willis G. Ehrhardt, president of the Ehrhardt Tool and Machine company, spokesman for the companies, said the men were members of the American Federation of Labor's International Association of Machinists.

PLANS TO ADMIT EMBEZZLEMENT

Former Ohio Postmaster Will Change Plea to Guilty.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Millard Neistune, 48-year-old former Lewistown postmaster charged with embezzling $258 in postal funds, will change his plea to innocent to one of guilty and throw himself on the mercy of the court, his attorney, W. B. McLeskey of Columbus, said today.

Notestine pleaded innocent late yesterday before Federal Judge Mell G. Underwood, and at McLeskey's request the jurist referred the case to the probation officer. McLeskey pointed out that the alleged embezzlement took place last February and that Notestine already has made restitution.

The plea will be changed, McLeskey said, when the probation officer submits his report.

He said improvement in the oil industry's transportation troubles were responsible for the increase.

Ohio's daily production rate for July was set at 11,300 barrels.

MILLERSBURG—Seventeen persons were injured, eight seriously, yesterday afternoon in a two-car collision at a county road intersection east of here.

Payments Flood

Treasurer Day After Tax Billing

Richland county taxpayers didn't wait for a second invitation to pay their real estate taxes for the second half of 1941 after receiving the semi-annual statements mailed by County Treasurer Charles Payne yesterday.

Although the tax books don't open officially until July 1, the county treasurer found today's mail filled with pre-collection payments while a large number of property owners personally paid their taxes at the office.

"I guess people want to get the payments off their hands early this year," said Payne, adding that vacation plans might have had something to do with the early payments.

The tax bill, including delinquencies for the last-half period of 1941 is only a trifle higher than the collections made for the first half. The bill amounts to (Continued on Page 2, Col. 7)

Army Bombers Hit Bengasi In Raid With RAF

Big 4-Motored American Planes Join Constant Border Patrol After Setting Fires In Damaging Assault On Axis Base.

(By Associated Press)

CAIRO—The United States Army has hurled its big four-motored consolidated bombers into the defense of Egypt with a damaging raid on the Axis supply base of Bengasi, Libya, it was disclosed today.

With the battered British Eighth army expecting a drive eastward into Egypt at any time by the German-led troops who captured Tobruk and moved up to the border, the U. S. fliers joined the RAF in a heavy raid Sunday night on Bengasi's piers and railroad, an RAF communique reported.

Many fires were started in the damaging assault. The RAF alone raided other Libyan points, shooting up airdromes and transport, and reported torpedo hits on a merchant vessel in an Africa-bound Axis convoy.

Constant aerial patrol is being maintained, in addition to the bombing and strafing, in the American and RAF bid to keep the Nazis and their Italian satellites from getting set for the expected quick thrust against Egypt.

Royal Air Force observers reported that "large numbers" of German-Italian vehicles, presumably carrying troops, were in the vicinity of Sidi Azeiz, 12 miles west of the border, where they were attacked by fighters and bombers, but it was reported here that the great bulk of the enemy strength still seemed to be some 50 miles west of the border.

Land activity in the desert area near the border thus far has been limited to incursions by enemy armored patrols southwest of the frontier west of Fort Capuzzo, where British mobile forces also were active.

ANGRY: British Told Of Tobruk Naval Losses; Score Leadership

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Dissatisfaction with Britain's military leadership flared openly in the house of commons today as it received its first accounting of the defeat in Libya.

Although the heartening news came that Britain's desert fighters had been reinforced and that more reinforcements are on the way, the house learned that the naval side of the Libyan struggle cost Britain seven warships, including a light cruiser, and 39 planes.

Clement Attlee, dominions secretary, made the report in the absence of Prime Minister Churchill but offered little explanation of the sharp, sudden setback in Libya.

The house, apparently determined to fix the blame for the defeat, cheered when conservative Sir John Wardlaw-Milne, from Churchill's own party, declared that some members "no longer have confidence in the military direction of the war."

Although Attlee said the Axis also lost heavily in the Mediterranean convoy battle, he disclosed for the first time that the Tobruk-bound convoy from Alexandria had to turn back.

The deputy prime minister said the second convoy, from Gibraltar had reached Malta—which he indicated was the destination of both—"with serious loss."

As the members demanded to know when Churchill himself would return to give a full state (Continued on Page 2, Col. 3)

FLLEE: Women, Children Leave Sevastopol; City Still Holds

(By United Press)

MOSCOW—Many women and children of Sevastopol have been evacuated from the besieged Crimean fortress whose defenders, sworn to fight to "the last drop of our blood," have wiped out a German wedge pointed at the heart of the city, the newspaper Pravda announced today.

The women and children among Sevastopol's 70,000 civilians presumably were rescued from the encircled and bomb-damaged city by sea, under protection of the guns of the Russian Black sea fleet. They probably were taken eastward into the Caucasus.

While the battle for the Crimean stronghold raged with unabated fury on its 17th day at the northern and southern approaches, the Germans launched a new massive drive on the Kinokov front, 400 miles to the north, in an effort to blast open a northern gateway to the Caucasus.

Hurled back in repeated attempts to storm across the Donets east of Kharkov, the Germans brought up fresh mechanized and infantry forces and unleashed a smashing attack after intense aerial bombing of the Red army's positions.

It was acknowledged that in one sector the Germans made "some slight gain" after daylong fighting in the vicinity of an inhabited place, but the Russians took up new positions and finally stemmed the enemy rush.

Many points changed hands repeatedly during the Kharkov

Ship Toll 293; Navy Starts Coast Convoys

The announced toll of Allied and neutral ships sunk in the western Atlantic since Pearl Harbor stood at 293 today as the navy disclosed it had started convoying merchant shipping along the east coast.
The eastern sea frontier covered by the navy's announcement includes all territorial waters from Maine to Florida.
These waters would be in for redoubled submarine activity under Hitler's directive to his undersea raiders to intensify their drive, beginning Friday, north of the West Indies, as well as Ireland and east to Europe.

One of four recent sinkings reported yesterday to boost the war total to 293 was that of a large American merchantman which capsized and sank in three minutes after striking a mine off the Virginia coast last Wednesday.

Third Mate Irving C. Leetz, one of 44 survivors landed at an east coast port, told newsmen he had learned from the crew of his rescue vessel that nine mines, apparently planted by lurking subs, had been swept up the day before his ship fell prey to another mine. Three men were missing after that explosion.

Buenos Aires reported the sinking of the 4,800-ton Argentine freighter Rio Tercero and Rellon Brazil, reported the torpedo-sinking of the 4,954-ton U. S. ship Columbian and the Panamanian ship Cardinas.

Japs Say Same Sub Shelled Canada, U. S.

LONDON — (AP) — A Tokyo broadcast of a Japanese Domei news agency report heard by Reuters (British) news agency today said that the Japanese submarine which attacked Vancouver island was the same which lobbed shells into the Oregon coast.

Domei appeared somewhat confused in its reports which conflicted with a previous broadcast by the Japanese-controlled Batavia radio.

The submarine which attacked Vancouver island, said Domei, "was the same which twice bombarded the Oregon coast near Fort Brown and also Westport."

The Batavia radio said that the Estevan point on Vancouver island was shelled twice.

Advices from Canada and the United States reported only one shelling of Vancouver island and one shelling of the Oregon coast. (Editor's Note: The attack on the Oregon coast took place in the vicinity of Fort Stevens, not Fort Brown, near Seaside. Westport, the second point asserted by Domei to have been shelled, lies about 32 miles inland on the Columbia river.)

88 Feared Dead In U. S. Ship Sinking

AN EAST COAST PORT — (AP) — Two torpedoes fired in quick succession by an enemy submarine sank a medium-sized American freighter in three minutes off the coast on June 15 with a possible loss of 88 lives—the heaviest in American coastal waters since the war began—the navy announced today.

Eighty one persons, including 23 U. S. soldiers were rescued. Members of the crew said the torpedoes struck within a minute of each other and that the vessel literally plunged below the surface, about 75 miles off the coast. The ship sunk so rapidly that none of the craft's 10 lifeboats could be launched.

They said that many of the 88 reported missing apparently were trapped in cabins below decks as the attack came at night.

In a graphic description of the sinking, Capt. Arthur E. Buck, 51, New York, a pilot for the British admiralty said:

"She was blown to hell. I don't know why everyone wasn't killed. But I plan to go back to sea next week. Somebody's got to do it."

have not penetrated their depth defenses, Red Star said.

The first Soviet communique today said that "nothing of importance occurred on the front, from Leningrad to the Crimea, last night, indicating not only that the situation had improved at Sevastopol, but that the renewed German drive on the Kharkov front was making no progress."

Though the Germans still were furiously assaulting Sevastopol's defenses and sacrificing their immense strength, Red Star said they had not made further progress after the Russians staged their rally.

The onslaught was unabated on other sectors, too, and repeated attacks—now in their 17th day—were being repulsed, but Red Star emphasized that the situation still was grave. Obviously, however, it was not as critical as when the assault on the northern defenses was gaining.

The main battle was going on around an undisclosed inhabited point where the enemy yesterday tried to turn Soviet defenses, but was beaten off with severe losses, Red Star said.

Five German attacks, supported by tanks, were defeated yesterday by Russian artillery, radio Moscow said. Several tanks were destroyed, more were damaged and fresh German corpses littered the battlefield.

(Stocks reaching London from Stockholm said German flame-thrower detachments were assaulting Sevastopol's inner defenses.

(One unconfirmed report said the Germans and Sevastopol's gallant garrison and civilian population, sworn to die "to the last soul," were fighting hand-to-hand with the Nazis within the city.

(Bitter fighting raged north and south of the Sevastopol river, Stockholm dispatches said, and the area north of the Sivernaya river was reported in German hands.

(Other reports were that Red army reinforcements, arms and ammunition had been landed, but observers doubted they would be decisive against the infantry, tanks and planes the Germans could muster from the Crimea.)

Freighter Sinking Blow to Neutrality

BUENOS AIRES — (AP) — The torpedoing of a third Argentine merchant ship a few days after Germany had apologized for the second, made the government's effort to maintain a policy of strict neutrality more difficult today.

Argentina and Chile are the only two American republics maintaining diplomatic relations with the Axis.

The navy ministry announced that the freighter Rio Tercero had been torpedoed and sunk 120 miles off New York harbor early Monday morning. ment Sir Stafford Cripps, leader in the house, announced that there would be a two-day debate in Libya soon.

Attlee suggested that the house should vote "and if there is blame they should place the blame on the right quarter" after learning the full facts.

Part of Attlee's statement was a telegram from General Sir Claude J. E. Auchinleck, British Middle Eastern commander-in-chief, disclosing that the Eighth army "already has received and still is receiving further reinforcements."

Attlee acknowledged that "events have turned against us" but he declared Britain still had strong forces in the field being implemented by "substantial land and air reinforcements" and that "the splendid courage and morale of our troops" was unshaken.

Auchinleck reported that at one point Rommel's army was exhausted and had been fought to a standstill.

"Had we been able to take advantage of the enemy's position we might have turned the scale," he added, "but in point of fact, however, we were equally exhausted and this was impossible."

Attlee indicated, nevertheless, that the situation in North Africa is not irreparable.

Attlee also announced a full dress debate soon on Allied shipping losses in response to growing anxiety.

RAF Bombers Hit Emden Third Night

BULLETIN
LONDON — (AP) — Huge forces of Royal Air Force bombers swept over France today after a heavy night attack on the German port and naval base of Emden.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON — British bombers smashed at the German naval base of Emden for the third time in four days last night and it was reliably reported the attack was both heavy and successful.

The scale of the attack was indicated by the report that six planes were reported missing from the operation.

The air ministry reported all explosives of the raiders were loosed in less than an hour.

"The weather was clear, apart from a slight ground haze, and well-placed flares gave valuable aid in identification of targets," the air ministry said.

Other RAF forces razed Nazi airfields and other targets in the low countries and France.

Bad weather had grounded Britain's bombers Sunday night, but on the two previous nights RAF squadrons had attacked Emden.

The raiders hammered powerfully at the submarine works, shipyards and the docks last night—the 78th raid on Emden since the war started.

One well-informed source said the naval base "probably looks very much like Cologne, Rostock and Luebeck now."

Propaganda Focuses On Jap-Red Front

NEW YORK — (AP) — An Axis propaganda campaign, either preparing advance excuses for a Japanese attack on Russia or signifying an attack, was launched today on the German radio.

The Tokyo newspapers Asahi and Hochi were quoted at length as saying that Britain and the United States were fomenting a Russian attack on Japan, that this was a main purpose of Prime Minister Churchill's visit to the United States, and that Churchill soon would go to Moscow to put the proposition up to Premier Stalin.

Russian Foreign Minister Vyacheslav Molotov rejected such a proposal when he recently was in London and Washington, the broadcasts said.

Of possible significance was the fact that no such comment was heard from the Tokyo radio. All was from Berlin, which might or might not quote the Japanese accurately, depending on the Germans' propaganda aim.

Russia and Japan both have been carefully honoring their neutrality pact, at least on the surface, but Chinese sources have reported Japanese troops moving in force into Manchuria near the Siberian frontiers.

vital routes in Kwangtung and Kiangsi provinces and that even with reinforcements brought up from the south seas, the enemy had been unable to narrow the 50-mile gap held by the Chinese along the strategic Chekiang-Kiangsi railway.

The spokesman said a Japanese move to invade the coastal province of Fukien from Kiangsi had also been frustrated.

But the Chinese again appealed for more arms, and it appeared that the call was being heeded on a rising scale.

Dispatches from New Delhi, India, said huge American army bombers, medium bombers, fighters and freighters were moving now from India to China despite the increasing fury of the monsoon rains and the alertness of Japanese fighter squadrons in Burma.

These dispatches said the planes—flying through fog and storm, dodging Jap fighters, skirting poorly-charted mountain peaks, and skimming jungles infested with tigers and headhunters—were delivering supplies and aerial striking power to the sorely pressed Chinese armies, who never have had an adequate air force to combat the invaders.

U. S. PAYROLLS SHOW INCREASE

Federal Employment Boosted 16 Per Cent In Four Months.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — More than 255,000 persons, representing an increase of nearly 16 per cent, were added to federal executive payrolls throughout the country between December 1941 and March 1942, the U. S. Civil Service commission reported today.

Of these, 31,587 poured into the already congested district of Columbia Metropolitan area, while the remaining 223,565 were assigned to posts in various U. S. cities.

Largest personnel increases were reported by departments vital to the war effort: the war department, 205,959; the navy department, 73,037; and the office for emergency management, 11,456.

Summon Experts to Discussion of Building and Use of Sea Craft.

Admiral Ernest J. King, commander-in-chief of the United States fleet; and Vice Admiral S. M. Robinson, chief of the navy's office of procurement and materials.

For the time being, the president and prime minister confined their public remarks to a carefully worded statement, issued last night. It made one principal point: "The object in view is the earliest maximum concentration of Allied war power upon the enemy, and reviewing or, where necessary, further concerting all the measures which have for some time past been on foot to develop and sustain the effort of the United Nations."

This first statement since Churchill's arrival last Thursday was entirely devoid of any pointed intimations as to the exact nature of the problems that brought England's war leader across the Atlantic by plane.

There was some reason to believe, however, that serious as the immediate military situations may be in China, North Africa and Southern Russia, the two United Nations chieftains were looking ahead with measured optimism to the time when the Allied powers will go on an offensive.

The assertion the president and prime minister were mapping an offensive strategy came from Harry L. Hopkins, a presidential intimate. Hopkins, addressing a Russian war relief rally in New York last night, said Churchill has "but one business here," and that was the planning of such strategy.

Neither the Churchill-Roosevelt statement nor the Hopkins speech was so phrased as to nullify speculation the opening of a second front in Europe was a matter of prime consideration in the consultations now in progress.

Hopkins told the meeting he had talked to Mr. Roosevelt a few hours before leaving Washington and the president gave him this message to deliver:

"Tell them that we mean to give Russia aid on the field of battle and that our armed forces will attack at the right time and at the right place and that the Russian front will not fail."

"A second front?" Hopkins asked. "Yes, and if necessary a third and fourth front," to pen the German army in a ring of our offensive steel.

Concerning the naval and air battles in the Pacific, Hopkins remarked that "the main Japanese fleet, though damaged, is still intact." But the Japs know now of our deadly striking power of our aircraft carriers, he said, and the vast fleet which moved toward Midway took a "staggering blow" and had gone home "to lick the wounds of that major defeat."

"The battles of the Coral sea and Midway," Hopkins said, "are preludes of the inevitable disaster that awaits Tojo and his cruel military dictatorship."

"Step by step, country by country—no matter how long it may take—the forces of the United Nations will strike, they way back to the very gates of Japan. We mean, will destroy the last vestiges of that military dictatorship which has dominated Japan for so many years and oppressed the great masses of her people."

M. M. Litvinov, Soviet ambassador to the United States who spoke with Hopkins at the Madison Square Garden rally, declared Hitler's new offensive on the eastern front was "his final throw of the dice."

He said the whole military situation might have been changed if the German army had been diverted

STRESSES NEED FOR CAUTION ON HIGHWAYS

Galion Police Chief Tells Rotary Traffic Deaths Hit War Work.

GALION—Police Chief Merle Gow was speaker Monday evening at a dinner-meeting of the Galion Rotary club at Hotel Talbott.

He stressed our job at home in this life and death struggle of war, and said that the first problem is to furnish fighting materials for our armed forces, and second, that civilian life should be saved by better observance of traffic regulations.

In 1941, he said, there were more than 40,000 persons killed, about 20,000 of them being between the ages of 20 and 45, which were men eligible for military service. This number is equivalent to two army divisions, or to a great number of material producers in the field of war industry.

Gow explained that the attitude of most drivers is that the other fellow will be the cause of an accident if one should occur. He said that just because an individual has been driving for years, is no guarantee that he may not have an accident. A long record of no accidents does not mean that a driver is a good or safe one, or that he even obeys traffic regulations.

The attitude of most police departments toward violators in the past has been that they have changed in the old idea that a traffic violator is a law breaker and classed among criminals to the modern tendency to educate the public and the enforcement of traffic laws. He said education of drivers would solve 75 per cent of the troubles in enforcing laws.

If the majority of citizens would see to it that their own individual driving conformed to safety practices, Gow stated, most accidents would be eliminated. Contrary to what most people think, he said, there will be a greater percentage of accidents in spite of the amount of driving because cars are getting older and tires getting more wear will cause accidents. The accidents will be more costly, too, he said.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, JUNE 23, 1942.

Sometimes, in the rush of things, readers miss seeing a good article—but you shouldn't pass up Elsie Robinson's "Listen World" article on this page today.

Newcomer to Mansfield wonders why there is so much driving in the wrong direction in one-way alleys. The answer is that there is no police effort to stop this dangerous practice.

Cheers for Marlene Dietrich, who boosted war bond sales by personal appearances in several Ohio cities—and cheers for those who buy war bonds just as ardently because they are more interested in winning the war than in seeing Marlene Dietrich.

Principles On Which All Agree

TODAY'S Washington Merry-Go-Round, over in the right upper corner of this page, contains an interesting and thought-provoking reference to an approach to understanding that is being made between leaders of groups which have appeared to be in conflict but which, in reality, are aiming toward a common purpose.

The article tells of a meeting between Eric Johnston, newly elected president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, and the heads of the two large organized labor organizations, Philip Murray, president of the CIO, and William Green, president of the A. F. of L.

It was the apparent intention of Mr. Johnston to reach agreement with Mr. Murray and Mr. Green on a few basic principles, one of which was to "cut out name-calling," another to accept the principle of a fair profit as being necessary to both labor and industry, and still another to the effect that neither labor nor industry wants a Communist system in this country. All were in agreement on these points.

Recognition of unions and rights of collective bargaining are principles that have already become well established, without acceptance, however, of the "closed shop" idea to the extent of forcing union membership on individuals or groups that prefer to remain outside of such organizations.

It has been the unsavory practices of some labor leaders, and the unprincipled racketeering that has entered into various phases of the movement, that have served to weaken public confidence in the present structure of organized labor, and it may be hoped that the really responsible leadership can weed out these objectionable elements, not only for the duration of war but in the interest of later national rehabilitation.

Encouragement is seen in the agreement of Mr. Johnston, Mr. Murray and Mr. Green to get together from time to time for further discussion of common problems.

Harry Hopkins Expresses Views

A MORE convincing voice than that of Harry Hopkins, listed as "chief adviser to President Roosevelt," is needed to carry assurance of eventual Allied victory to the people of the United States at a time when Axis successes are looming large in the news.

Speaking at a mass meeting in New York last night, Hopkins said that "nothing can stop our onward march to overwhelming military victory," which is in the tone that must continue to inspire confidence in final victory but which does not seem to take into account the fall of Tobruk, the threat to Egypt and the imminent peril of Sevastopol, to say nothing of conditions in China and throughout the Far East.

It was when Hopkins indulged in the rabble-rousing oratory of anticipating action after victory that he was in typical form, as in his hope that "if the people do not hang Mussolini by his cowardly neck, after the war, that he be turned over to the tender mercies of Ethiopia's king," and that "Tojo had better get ready to choose the weapon with which he and hundreds of his officers will commit hari-kiri."

Another of Hopkins' pronouncements was to the effect that "complete destruction of Hitler's power is the first and foremost objective of the Allies," which is already so well known as to scarcely justify this authoritative repetition.

Speeches are a necessary part of the national war effort but the further in the background of administrative activities Harry Hopkins can be kept at this crucial period the better it would appear to be for the maintenance of public confidence in soundness of American war policies and in the good sense of intended procedure when the war has been won.

Cutting Down Use of Cars

CASUAL observation suggests that reducing automobile driving at least one-half may be no hardship. Until lately, most people hadn't seriously tried to save fuel or wear. Gasoline was cheap, and so were cars when you measured their value in terms of mileage. So people drove long distances just for pleasure or from boredom, and used their cars for all kinds of unnecessary trips and errands.

Many who have been sobered lately into a real effort to economize find that they can cut their car use anywhere from one-fourth to three-fourths. A convenient formula for driving economy is, instead of thinking up unnecessary ways to use the car, to leave it in the garage unless you really need it to go somewhere.

It is well, however, not to stop driving entirely, but to take the car out occasionally, say at least once a week. This will keep the battery charged and the car in commission, and will preserve its value better than total disuse.

Hunger Hits Hamburg

FOOD RIOTS are reported in Hamburg. Depend upon it, the rioters are the housewives and humble people of the city. High-placed Nazis have no shortage of food to riot about.

Hitler is said to be abstemious in his habits; but when fat Goering, Goebbels and the other Nazi leaders run short of food, the millennium will be near. Or should it be called the day of judgment?

Out in Indiana a missing dog returned home carrying the paper in which its loss was advertised—arent which the Detroit News comments: "So much for those who believe the power of the press."

Police in Windsor, Canada, complain that gasoline imported from the United States was watered—and they don't like to be fueled that way.

The father whose college student son gave him a billfold last Sunday is expressing appreciation of the compliment.

ANOTHER SELECTIVE SERVICE PROBLEM

Listen World!

Juke-Box Homes

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

HATS OFF to Judge Thomas M. Foley of the San Francisco juvenile court! There has been heavy going at the juvenile court recently, with an appalling increase of delinquency among teen-age school girls, although every social service agency in town has been trying to buck the sordid tide which war is landing on our beach. And, of course, everyone has been trying to pass the buck to everyone else.

But now comes Judge Foley and places the responsibility flatly on the responsible source—THE DELINQUENT PARENTS! CARELESS, INCOMPETENT AND INDIFFERENT MOTHERS, ESPECIALLY.

Mind you, the wise judge doesn't say these parents are "bad." He doesn't claim that they abuse their children, starve or beat them. He doesn't cite them as "disturbers of the peace."

But the simple fact is, they are that, and nothing else but. And "should be fittingly punished for contributing to the juvenile delinquency of their minor boys and girls," says His Honor. At which point at least a million bewildered and heart-broken mothers and fathers of America should arise and give him a ringing round of cheers.

For we all know these delinquent parents, with their juke-box homes and their trashy standards of living. Whether we live in New York or Florida, Kansas or California, we're familiar with the demoralization they are working in our homes.

They no longer abide "across the railroad tracks." Chances are they have the apartment across the hall or the house around the corner. Respectable homes, they seem. Pretty furnished, gay and friendly. But Barbary Coast and the Bowery at their rottenest were never a greater menace to American youth.

For the parents who run those homes, particularly the mothers, are as lawless in their attitude as any tramp that ever came out of the hobo jungle.

They may, and often do, go to church on Sunday. And they would be furious if rated as law-breakers. Yet many a convict in San Quentin or Sing Sing is less perilous to the national morale. There is no home-making in these juke-box hangouts. There are no standards which a child must respect. All day long the dirty dishes pile in the sink... the dust accumulates across the floors... the slatternly mothers, as boy-crazy as their high school daughters, loll around, chain-smoking, listening to a blaring radio, waiting for the fun to begin.

And when school is out, the fun does begin. For such places are an irresistible magnet to every growing girl and boy. Here is the cheap atmosphere which is not permitted in their own homes. Here they may dance and neck and grab picnic lunches from the refrigerator, regardless of hours or studies. And from here it is only a step to the shady "ice cream parlor" or "tarnal joint" with no pesty parental nagging to pursue them.

And what can the decent fathers and mothers do, sitting at home, waiting vainly for Judy and Jim to come back... seeing all their dreams and ambitions crumbling and the work of the loving years brought to naught, simply because some irresponsible parent is running a place which is virtually a joint and as poisonous as any 1890 dive.

What can they do? As things now stand, they can do very little. If they attempt to discipline or preach to young Judy and Jim, they meet open and sneering defiance... are told they are "old-fashioned" and don't "know the answers" any more. If they try to bring sterner pressure, Judy and Jim will simply walk out on them, go to the juke-box homes where there is always ready sympathy and laughter and more encouragement of their rebellion. Pretty soon Jim has run away... and Judy is headed for the down grade.

They can do little, these desperate fathers and mothers, who see the home front of America slipping. But they could do much if they would band together, under the leadership of such a man as Judge Tom Foley as their vigilant grandfathers and grandmothers did, and close up a few of the juke joint homes.

More Questions Answered Here.

—By DR. CLENDENING

E. D.: Will x-ray show ulcers or cancer of the stomach? Will it also show the intestines and tell what may be the cause of constipation and gas in these regions? Answer: Yes.

H. L. E.: Does plain white sugar destroy calcium? Would a glass of warm water containing a teaspoonful of salt taken each morning before breakfast harden the arteries or lift the blood pressure above normal? Answer: Sugar has no effect on calcium whatever. Warm water and salt have no effect on the blood pressure or on hardening of the arteries.

F. H. W.: What is a fissure and can it be treated in other ways than by an operation? Answer: A fissure is simply a crack in the mucous membrane. It may occur nearly any place in the body, such as around the lips, nose, and so forth. I presume that you refer to a fissure of the rectum. This can be treated by applications of silver nitrate.

F. I. W.: If once a lung is deflated does it ever come back to normal? Answer: Yes.

C. M. H.: Is a mixture of lemon juice and soda water considered a good conditioner? What is the difference in the effect upon the system if it is taken while effervescent or after effervescing? What chemical change, if any, takes place in the solution itself after effervescence has stopped? Answer: The term, "a good conditioner," is a little indefinite. I don't quite know what you mean. Lemon juice and soda water tend to flush the kidneys and it is often a help to digestion. There is no chemical change that occurs after effervescence has stopped. The effect of the effervescence is largely to make any drink more palatable and make it absorb somewhat more rapidly. The only thing that escapes is carbon dioxide gas.

Answer: Fred Carley said, "Too bad Chic couldn't make it." He meant Chic Johnson ("Sons 'O Fun"). But Chic, to his immense sorrow, couldn't make it. He had to rehearse a new girl (Wynne Murray) who was replacing Ella Logan in "Sons 'O Fun." It's probably just as well, though, that he added as an after thought, "This is a day for real fishermen, not actors."

I LOOKED at the spruce and the mountain laurel and the distant mountains, and the deep clear water that came from cool springs 60 feet below us, and the war seemed far away. This was China Lake. It is one of three smaller bodies of water on the 3000-odd acres of the Carmel, N. Y., country club. It has steelhead and rainbow and brooks. It has largemouth black bass and smallmouth black bass. On that day, all we took were steelhead. On other days, all you'll take are rainbows. That seems singular. But, it's true. They're all beauties. When China Lake is stocked, nothing under 12 inches will do. Something like three thousand trout are put in there at one time. They cost about 30 cents a piece. A sizeable item, but worth it. The thrill they give you makes the goose pimples break out all over your arms.

Fingerprint Everybody.

Congress again hears a proposal that fingerprinting of the entire population be made mandatory. Gradually the truth is gaining ground that identification of persons accused of wrongdoing is but one of many reasons for keeping a complete file of fingerprints of every man, woman and child in the country.

Testimony before a congressional committee showed that fingerprinting the employees in defense industries and all attaches of the armed forces already is listing a large part of the population. Fingerprint records are coming to the Federal Bureau of Investigation at the rate of 60,000 a day, and the present program contemplates filing 30,000,000 records in a short time.

It thus becomes evident that public opinion is prepared for an act of congress making fingerprinting a requirement throughout the country. Any opposition that may remain could easily be removed through the educational work of civilian defense.—Detroit News.

New Chamber of Commerce Head Seeks Co-operation With Labor

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—For years the U. S. Chamber of Commerce has been considered the citadel of big business and the nation's most vitriolic group of labor-baiters. For years its officers have hurled annual, semi-annual and sometimes monthly diatribes at Roosevelt's policies and at labor unions.

Therefore you can get some idea of their astonishment when the president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, Eric Johnston, called on Phil Murray, head of the CIO and Bill Green of the AFL.

Mr. Johnston, newly elected president of the U. S. Chamber, is its first president to come from west of Chicago. He is from Spokane, Wash. Also he is 44 and the Chamber's youngest president.

His talks with Green and Murray were as refreshing as his comparative youth.

"This may surprise you," he said, "but I think we businessmen have a lot in common with labor, and I'd like to propose that we get together on several things. I think we can even show you that already we agree on quite a few things."

"My organization has done some things wrong in the past, but I think I can get most of my members to agree now on recognition of unions."

"That doesn't mean the closed shop, necessarily. But here's the first thing I think we can all agree on—cutting out name calling. We've called labor a lot of names and you've thrown a lot of bricks at us. I think the atmosphere would be a lot better if both sides cut this out and gave the other the benefit of the doubt."

This sound suggestion struck an immediate responsive chord in both Green and Murray, who agreed that this was one point on which the CIO and the U. S. Chamber of Commerce could concur, wide apart as they might be on other matters.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—I sneaked off fishing the other day. It was the best fishing trip I ever had. I went with Fred Carley, of the Danbury (Conn.) Bethel Gas & Electric Co. Mr. Carley is a man who's loaded down with fishing savvy. He can read water the way you read a newspaper. He can stand on the boat dock, scan the shoreline, and tell you how many fish you'll take. I once saw Babe Ruth point to a spot in the distant bleachers during a World Series game with the Chicago Cubs and then drive a home run into that very spot. I thought that was tops at calling your shots until I stood on the shores of China Lake with Fred Carley the other day. Fred looked at the water. The shoreline was a lush belt of blue spruce and mountain laurel. There was no sun. He said, "I figure we'll take eight the first time around the lake."

WE took eight. Eight steelheads. They came out of the blue depths in jagged streaks, and it seemed as if they had been freshly painted a glittering silver. It was like taking pure silver from a mother lode.

The pure silver splashed all over the bottom of the boat. "Brother," said Fred, "you want to slit these babies up the back. . . . Not up the front, the way you do ordinary fish, but up the back. . . . Gently, easily. . . . Then lift the backbones out. . . . Then spread 'em open, and put some salt and pepper on them, and lay little squares of salt pork on them—no bacon, mind you—that's too strong. . . . salt pork's the best. . . . Then slip them gently under the broiler. . . . That's all, Brother."

Fred Carley said, "Too bad Chic couldn't make it." He meant Chic Johnson ("Sons 'O Fun"). But Chic, to his immense sorrow, couldn't make it. He had to rehearse a new girl (Wynne Murray) who was replacing Ella Logan in "Sons 'O Fun." It's probably just as well, though, that he added as an after thought, "This is a day for real fishermen, not actors."

General MacArthur.

POPULAR young Senator Josh Lee will never forget his first encounter with Gen. Douglas MacArthur, in which the Army hero proved himself, then as now, a man of dynamic action. It happened in 1935 while MacArthur was chief of staff and Lee was a rookie representative from Oklahoma.

Lee walked into the house one day while Congressman Vito Marcantonio, New York left-winger, was assailing the ROTC in colleges. Lee didn't like it. He was fresh from the campus of the University of Oklahoma, which has one of the finest ROTC units in the country.

So Lee let go with a counterblast which almost blew Marcantonio off his feet. One of the most interested readers of the Congressional Record next day was General MacArthur. Several days later Lee telephoned MacArthur about a problem. The telephone conversation went like this:

Lee: "Hello, General MacArthur, this is Congressman Josh Lee of Oklahoma. I'd like to ask a favor of you."

MacArthur: "Mr. Congressman, it will be a pleasure to do you a favor. If it is within our power, you'll have it. You are a real friend of the U. S. Army."

Lee: "Thanks, General. This is what I have on my mind. I'd like to have Biff Jones transferred from the University of Louisiana to the University of Oklahoma to coach football. He's an Army man, and you can do it."

MacArthur: "Yes, sir, I can and it will be done."

Lee: "Thank you, General."

MacArthur: "It's a pleasure, Mr. Congressman."

And it was done immediately.

"That," grins Lee reminiscently, "is the way General MacArthur works."

Rubber Braintrust.

SENATOR GUY GILLETTE of Iowa wasn't shooting in the dark when he charged that the government's synthetic rubber program is controlled by "minimally interested" anxious to avert competition after the war.

His statement followed a closed door meeting of an investigating committee, headed by the Iowa senator, at which it was revealed that the mysterious "advisory committee" which assists Jesse Jones in directing synthetic rubber production is composed chiefly of officials of the big rubber companies and Standard Oil.

For weeks Gillette tried to find out who was on this committee, but was unable to get any definite information. The only name Gillette could definitely establish was that of E. R. Weideman, $1-a-year man on leave from the Mellon Institute.

But Gillette now has the full list of this secret braintrust. It was revealed at the closed-door meeting by Paul E. Hadlick, the committee's able counsel. How Hadlick got the list is his secret, but committee members gasped when he read these names:

R. P. Dinsmore of Goodyear Tire and Rubber; P. K. Frolich of the Standard Oil Development Company; J. N. Street of Firestone Rubber; W. A. Gibbons of U. S. Rubber; J. H. Boyd of H. C. Car Chemical company, and W. L. Semon of B. F. Goodrich company.

A Farmer's Diary

At the Garden Club

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

ON INVITATION, my wife and I went to a breakfast of a garden club at 11:30 the other forenoon, in a neighboring community.

We told each other we would start early enough to take some calls to the printer's, on our way but at the last minute I found that a contrary old hen had roosted on the beam just above my car in the garage—and there was nothing to do but put on some old clothes and get at the job of cleaning it. Then, on our way to town, the front part of the car reeled slightly to the right and I heard a gentle thump with the turn of each front wheel. When we reached a filling station I stepped out to look.

Just as I thought! The thin worn tread of the tire was split and one side was two inches wider—swollen, it was, like some human injury. Fortunately I had a spare, and in 20 minutes we were on our way.

A freckled lad in the nearest village, directed us. He said, "Go five houses out that road—house is on one side, barn on the other. Sure—that's where Jones lives!" What he didn't tell was that all the Jones boys settled out that way, and the Jones we wanted lived much closer in—but we traveled out, and found our mistake, and came back—and there was the garden club, in an ideal rural setting.

Cars were parked along the lane and in front of the barn. I was impressed by the good soil of the level land, by the large walled spring that flowed, a splendid stream, from the roots of a giant maple below the grassy, eastern hill; by the splendid shade that sheltered the privacy of garden and lawn, without hampering the view across the valley.

It was a breakfast to remember. The farmer, his hired help, the husband of the general secretary of garden clubs, and I, were the only male members by the party. We men folk ate at a small table on the breezy lawn, beneath a maple. The ladies ate from trays, as is usual on such occasions. The food was wholesome, well cooked, abundant, and daintily served.

Nearly all members present were from the farm population of that immediate community. Their interests were very nearly mutual, and their informal, simple manners and the sincerity of their visiting impressed me by its good will and kindness. The program began with an earnest, eager expectancy that was inspiring.

These women were farmers' wives. They had a determined interest in the nobler, finer things of life, and all about the porch and lawn on which we sat was evidence of such interest. Oriental poppies, delphiniums, painted gladioli, lilies, peonies—the potato patch beyond, and then the rows of straight clean corn! What a setting for a genuine garden club! On the snag of a sour cherry tree so near that I could have reached it with my hand, a bluebird had built her nest. From this high-perched home she looked down, and wondered at our meeting. I heard a Baltimore oriole in the maple; a flicker drummed from the woods; a distant pheasant crowed; and a mother quail called from the border of the wheat. White lambs were asleep beneath the spreading oak on the hill. We caught the faint fragrance of early harvest, the green landscape, the vast reaches of summer sky. We spoke of the beauty about us—made a part of it our own, and went away content.

CHAPTER XIII

How helpless in emergency, were women of Ellen Kenyon's generation and training. Ronnie thought, "We'll have to work fast. Try to locate Asa Kenyon and Cora."

"You've no idea where they could be reached?" he asked.

"Not the least. Things haven't been going so well in our home lately . . . I'm sorry . . . I mean Cora didn't say where she was going, and Asa, he comes home so seldom for supper nowadays."

"Then we'll make the best of what we have. We'll have to shake up Kay. They'll be here with Elsa in a few minutes. I don't like this any better than you do, Mrs. Kenyon, but it has to be done. 'Hey, Red,' he said, shaking Kay's shoulder, 'come out of it, will you. Wake up and walk. On your feet. Nix, Red, none of that slumping. Up!'"

Ronnie helped Kay to her feet, held her steady.

"Let me go," she whimpered. Ronnie shook Kay, gently. She rallied.

"Look, Bopeep," he said, forcing her to face him, "focus, will you. Use the old noggin. Who am I?"

"Ron," she said, "go away. I told you . . . I'm . . . I'm . . . oh Ron. Please go away."

Ronnie shook Kay again. This time less gently.

"Snap out of it, Red," he ordered, close to her ear. "There's been an accident . . . you hear, accident?"

Kay struggled through the fog. "Ron," she said, "what's happened. Stop shaking me. I'm all right, honestly. Not even scratched."

"Good. Then stay on your feet, will you. There's trouble, plenty. 'Trouble?' The word galvanized Kay. 'Where?'"

"At the Country club. Savve, Country club?"

"Yes, yes. Don't keep repeating. I hear you. What is it? A fire?"

"I'll say it's a fire. They've just fished Elsa out of the pool."

Kay ran trembling fingers through rumpled hair.

"Elsa!" You mean . . . you mean . . . she's."

"No, but she's soggy. They're bringing her here. Turn on that porch light."

"I can't. It's burned out."

"Damn. Then put on any other lights you can find. Have her bed ready, hot blankets, hot water bottles, anything else you can think of we might need. I'll call a doctor."

Already a car was stopping in front of the house. Two cars. From the first car two men carried the limp, dripping figure of a woman. Elsa.

"If you'll come this way please," Kay was leading the way. The grim little group was swallowed up by the shadows of the Kenyon hallway.

Five minutes. Kay was back, coming onto the porch again, when voices stopped her.

"Don't put on that holier than thou stuff Ronnie," Tally Holmes said. "You did quarrel. We heard you."

"God," Ronnie groaned. "Something ought to be done about . . . about . . ."

"Women like me?" Tally taunted.

"Don't flatter yourself. You're not a woman. You're a public calamity. You have the soul of an asp."

"Flatterer? Now really!" How could Tally croon over this tragic moment? "The fact remains, you and Elsa quarreled. She left the party. The next we heard was the watchman shouting that a woman was drowning in the swimming pool."

A pause, then Ronnie said angrily:

"Listen you hell-cat, there was no quarrel. I told Elsa I was not joining the party. I had other tags to tie. She didn't like the idea. I did. So I left. And if I hear of you spreading any other story I'll make it my life work to squeeze your pretty throat with my two bare hands until I'm sure you'll never spill another mess of misinformation or scatter another scandal, not in Somerset or in any other place on this mortal sphere."

Another silence. Then Tally, in a small, strangled voice: "Why . . . why . . . Ronnie. I didn't mean it was your fault, Elsa throwing herself into the pool."

"How do you know she threw herself into the pool? How do you know she didn't fall in accidentally? It's been done before. Or, by any chance, did you push her?"

"Ronnie!" Tally sobbed hysterically. "You know I love Elsa; she's my best friend. How can you say such horrible things? . . . I was just trying to help."

"Lord save the soul you try to help," Ronnie said. "So suppose you scam. You've had enough fun for one night."

"Take it easy, Ron," said one of the young men who had helped carry Elsa to her room. "We're all in a tangle. We called a doctor from the club. He should be here any minute."

A worn car rattled to a stop at the steps. It was mudsplattered.

A man with a worn leather bag alighted.

"Dr. Stevens!" Tally's hysteria was gone in the wind of a new and more exciting drama. "Doctor, we've almost perished waiting for you. The most terrible thing has happened. Poor Elsa. I'll show you the way to her room."

Ronnie swept Tally aside, roughly. "One side, Borgia," he said. "You'll go into this house over my dead body. Are you moving back, or do I have to toss you to the lions?"

Kay called from the doorway,

"Dr. Stevens. If you'll follow me please." Kay already was running up the long rickety stairs. The plomp plomp of the doctor's heavy footsteps followed.

Tally recovered her poise. "And who are you?" she asked Ronnie, fumbling for a cigarette. "Could you be Mr. Kay Kenyon?"

"Not yet, Snoopy," Ronnie said, offering her a light. "But if it interests you and your public, I've put in my bid."

For the first time in days Kay Kenyon could concentrate on her work. Elsa was off of danger. She had closed her lips tightly against what had happened on the evening she came so near to drowning in the Country club pool. Kay did not press her. It was enough that two tragedies had been averted on a single evening. Kay had been practically pulled from under a car on Center street. Elsa had been fished from a swimming pool.

"I wish we could get a little more color into this display, Bessie," Kay said, busy with the candles. "I wish we could get some imagination into it—it's just a heap of sugar, different flavors, different shapes, but still sugar."

"Um-m," Bessie said, glumly. "What you are, you are. I've been trying to doll myself up, to put on a dash of that old glamour, but look at me. I'm still Bessie Munsell from down by the lumber yard."

"Why Bessie!" Kay stopped what she was doing to step back, to survey the girl who had been so drab, so strung. "I wondered what there was about you that was different. I've been so engrossed with my own troubles . . . Bessie, you've had a new hair-do. And you've left off that purplish rouge. You look like yourself, the way I knew you in high school. Only much prettier."

"I'm still Bessie Munsell," she said sullenly.

"Of course you're Bessie Munsell. I wouldn't want you to be anyone else. Nor would those who know what a swell friend you are, want you to be anyone else. You're you, and that's all you need to be."

"Gosh!" Bessie all but dropped a tray of caramels. "You're pretty swell yourself, Kay. When you came in here I was all set to hate you like I've always hated that gang of yours that brush us underdogs off their sleeves like we were fleas. But you're different. You're human. You give us a break. I'm for you Kay. So what is it you want to do? Glamorize the show case?"

"Why not?" Kay said, rescuing the caramels. "We're in this together Bessie, so let's make the most of it."

Use Texas Pulp In Manufacture Of Explosives

CLARKSVILLE, Tex. — (AP) — Texans, who have already stacked up an enviable air record for their home state in the war for survival, will soon be riding, shooting and wearing war materials made from a single product of their native state.

The material is wood, called Bois d'Arc and osage orange wood. It is cut in Texas and shipped to Chester, Pa., where it is first pulverized to extract the dye used in coloring army uniforms. A part of the pulp is then used to manufacture explosives and the remainder is turned into airplane plastics.

Bois d'Arc, in peace time, is used extensively in the southwest as foundation material for frame dwellings because of its strength and water resisting qualities.

SCRAP OLD SHIP WRECKAGE WHEELER, Ore. — (AP) — Buried deep in the sand and rocks since 1913, wreckage of the English sailing ship Glenslin has been tossed on the beach by the ocean and is being salvaged and sold for scrap iron and steel.

COUSIN OF FAMOUS OUTLAW INDUCTED INTO U. S. ARMY

(By International News Service) ST. LOUIS—If a person's relatives are indicative of his ability and skill, then Private Frank James will prove of value in the United States Army, according to the Public Relations Department at Jefferson Barracks.

James is a cousin of Frank and Jesse James, famous Missouri bandits. A native of Mulberry, Kan., and a marksman himself, Private James is now at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., after induction at Jefferson Barracks.

Private James, who is a licensed pilot with 36 hours' flying time, does not mind the relationship and adds that his middle name is Howard—that of another member of the James' band of outlaws.

"I'm not proud of the names because they were outlaws," Frank explained, "but because they fought for liberty. I figure we can use a lot of guys like that now and I hope to do my part as a pilot."

Frank said that his dad's father and the father of the James' boys were brothers.

Private James' father had recalled that Frank (the outlaw) was a good-natured fellow and he always claimed that he and Jesse were forced to become outlaws and that the killing of their mother was the chief reason. Frank was said to have never mentioned any killings, but did boast that he could beat any man to the draw, including Jesse.

Private James related that the bandit brothers had told his father that they were frightened before some robberies and brave during others, and could not eat for two or three days while they planned a "big job." The largest amount the James' brothers ever got in a holdup was $30,000 from a bank. If the brothers found they could not split the money evenly, they would play poker for what was left over.

Private James' father lived at Harrisonville, Mo., about 70 miles from Liberty, Mo., home of the bandits. According to Private James, the James' brothers often helped neighbors in their fields and were known to have fought together only once and that was over a girl when they were going to school.

Advice Given to Office Fiancee With New Ring

Susie Smirk works in our office. She works in yours, too, or there's one just like her who is supposed to work!

On a sluggish, late-starting Monday morning when the mail is piled high, the office boy on vacation, three buzzers buzzing and the express man waiting with a C. O. D. package, Susie dances in with a new diamond ring.

It's big enough to worry an air warden if left shining in the window, but Susie doesn't stand around waiting for people to see it. She starts a triumphant tour of the office, lasting an hour and a half, and gives extra showings at regular intervals to those who missed the initial performance.

Susie is in such a state emotionally that she would probably file any complaints in the water cooler. But we put ourselves on record as saying that such situations strain office etiquette.

Here, we submit, is the right slant on this "left-handed" business and see if you don't agree:

1. Your boss or immediate superior should really see your diamond first. This is more dignified than having "the help" discuss it right under his nose while he's still in the dark about it. Remember that you will receive a nice wedding gift from him later on.

2. Don't trip from desk to desk with that "Oh, say can you see" expression. Tell your girl friend privately and let her send the bunch to you. They'll come clean and your polish perfect. Everybody gets a close-up of your nail-grooming when they look at your gem. But don't rock the whole office by losing your ring in the washroom! While it's new and you might forget, put it in your handbag when you wash your hands.

Magazine Article Defends Beauty Shop Operators

Show us the beauty shop that hasn't tried to meet customers' demands and maintain operating efficiency by meticulous appointment schedules, advertising specials for off days and slack seasons and enlisting the customers' cooperation by various devices.

But also show us the beauty shop operator who hasn't cried "There ought to be a law laying down fair trade practices for beauty shop customers."

Getting customer cooperation is a real problem, and a popular magazine tackles it in its July issue with "Beauty Shop Blues" by Elsie Marie Newton. The magazine believes that the most direct way to ousting the beauty operators' bugaboos is through advice to the customer on how she can best get her money's worth in beauty treatments.

Mrs. Newton's program to make the customer want to be right includes the following:

1. Make an appointment, and keep it. If the shop fits you in where no time was allowed, you throw the whole schedule out of kilter, and you must not be surprised to find your operator harassed and hurried, if not inefficient. You do the same thing if you are late.
2. Don't make your beauty shop a social rendezvous. If you have friends telephone you there, you compel your operator to skimp on you to be ready for her next appointment.
3. Don't make a habit of bringing your children to the shop. They distract you and your operator, and waste time. Before your daughter arrives for her first beauty treatment, school her in what is expected of her.
4. Make appointments for early in the day and early in the week. Obviously a morning-fresh operator is capable of her best work. Are your evenings your only free time? Then patronize a shop which regularly remains open evenings.
5. To get the most cooperation from your operator, make an appointment when she has time to experiment with your coiffure. Clever hair styling is an art, requiring time and skill. If you want a change, let it be known at the time you make your appointment, so that more time can be allotted to you.
6. Tipping. Your conscience must be your guide. Remember most of all that it is only fair to express your appreciation for extra service in some way.
7. Don't try to tell your operator what to do. Don't fidget. When you have a permanent, hair dye or bleach, rely on the advice and judgment of the operator and don't lie about previous treatments your hair has received. Your operator knows her business and you will earn her cooperation by putting your problems in her hands—and relaxing.

Fickle Girl Has Three Proposals

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
Dear Miss Fairfax:
I've been going with a girl for a year. I always thought she was one of the finest girls I ever knew. We never quarreled until after I proposed. I knew she had been corresponding with two boys during our courtship but didn't mind.

However, after she accepted my proposal I received a letter from her saying she has received proposals from these boys and was considering the three of us. That letter just about killed all the love I had for her, and I can't seem to get back the old feeling.

She accuses me of things I don't do. I know I've never dated another girl since I've gone with her but she can't say the same thing to me. She cries and begs me to give her one more chance, and tells me how mean other boys have treated her. But still my love seems to have gone and I haven't a bit of faith in her any more. What shall I do?

Buddy
In considering the proposals of all three boys, it appears to me as if this young lady is not very deeply in love with any one of you. She's judicious rather than emotional. You cannot be blamed for experiencing a change of sentiment toward her.

Sisters Rivals.
Dear Miss Fairfax:
I've been married twenty-one years, have two daughters of 19 and 16. A year ago they met a young man of 23, and my older daughter became very much attached to him although he didn't seem to care for her. He liked the younger girl, who thought she hated him. The older girl is quiet, doesn't date much and has just learned to dance; the younger one likes to dance, and is a good all-around sport whom the boys like.

About five months ago this young man joined the Marines. The two girls corresponded with him. He sent the younger girl gifts. This made her sister jealous as she insists her younger sister flirted with the young man and took him away from her. I know she didn't do that.

Now the younger girl thinks she cares for the boy. He wrote and told her he loves her and has something to ask her soon. I'm afraid this will create a hatred between my two daughters. What would you advise me to do?

Worried Mother.
Your older daughter, whether or not she feels her sister flirted with the young man and took him away from her, would not want to force her affections on the man who plainly cares for someone else. See that your older daughter has a good time. Replenish her wardrobe, get her all the attractive new clothes you can afford. Urge her to make new contacts, go to parties. It's fortunate she's learned how to dance. I hope she dances well.

If she becomes interested in some other man, she'll forget the dashing Marine. Meanwhile your younger daughter should not flaunt her conquest. The affection of sisters is too precious a thing to lose over a man.

Tight Shoes Bring Corns Add Worries

(By MME. QUI VIVE)
If we all went barefoot, like the small boys in the back woods districts, we might wear bandages on our toes occasionally, but we would never have corns. Most of our foot troubles are caused by ill-fitting shoes. The woman whose vanity leads her to select pedicaps for looks instead of comfort is doing herself an injustice. If she sticks to spikes—which look ridiculous these practical, hard working days—she is likely to have more than foot troubles. She may have backache, a distorted figure with abdomen thrown forward, round shoulders, and such terrible grousches that nobody can live in the same house with her.

A narrow shoe throws the toes into a huddle, presses against the last little toe. Nature endeavors to protect the tissues, builds a heavy layer of cuticle. This hardened skin develops into a painful corn. The growth can be removed, but if the same shoes are worn it will reappear. There is trouble ever after unless the shoe is changed, a last with a wider sole selected. Unless you can wriggle your toes your casings are not what you should wear.

Stockings with short feet will bring calloused spots at the sides of the toe nails. Soft corns can also result. These pests can be banished by keeping the skin surface dry and powdered.

Cuticle around the toe nails is subject to infection, mainly because of lack of ventilation. If you are in the habit of using a sharp instrument to free the cuticle from the nail base—a practice of some young ladies before applying bright colored polish—be careful not to make an abrasion. Any open wound invites bacteria to come in and make trouble. An infected nail is a serious matter. Chiropractors warn against the use of steel instruments.

Ingrowing nails are caused by pressure. They come also from wearing spikes that send the toes too far down into the shoe. They cause pain and discomfort. Many women will bear with this trouble rather than come down to earth, wear heels that provide a steady foothold, the sillies.

If your activities keep you on your feet most of the day, provide yourself with several pairs of shoes that conform to the contour of your feet. Change them frequently; a change means rest for your tired troopers. If the day is warm and the flesh burns, bathe with tepid water to which baking soda has been added. Dry gently and friction with toilet lanoline, which is comforting.

Every morning dust the soles of the feet with a powder made for the purpose, sprinkle some inside your shoes, too. These preparations absorb moisture.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE By Shepard Barclay "The Authority on Authorities"

OUT-THINKING THINKERS
Certain stratagems are never tried by fine players against average opponents, but are attempted only on advanced ones. Why is that? It would seem illogical, as the expert would off-hand be expected to see through a scheme to mislead him. The answer is that some of the dodges of the canny depend upon making an opponent go through a certain line of reasoning which would not be used by any but a very skillful cardman.

The first moment he heard the bid, East thought of West's spade call as a possible lead-director in case the opponents ultimately got into No Trumps. He was all ready to do it, until South made that bid of 2-No Trumps. Being a careful calculator, East decided that North's diamond rebid, after having bid No Trumps once, indicated he had a single stopper in the suit, and so feared it.

When South, knowing about North's apparent fear, then bid No Trumps himself, that sounded to East as if South was showing a second spade stopper. Hence, he reckoned. West must have pretty good stuff elsewhere in his hand, probably in the heart suit which South had bid. Consequently he led the heart 3 and the jig was up. Winning that, North took two diamonds, gave up one to West, captured the spade return and then ran the balance of the needed nine tricks.

Most members of the rank and file could have been depended on to lead a spade after West showed the suit. That would have knocked out the A, and then, when a diamond had been lost, spades would have beaten the contract. Consequently, as South said later, he never would have made that 2-

For Wednesday, June 24.
An outstanding period for pushing toward high goals, with the promise of possibly sudden and unexpected advancement, recognition or preferment from influential personages is the augury based on interesting planetary configurations. This prospect for great fulfillments and personal gratification and happiness also has some difficulties and dangers, not only from impulsive, emotional or dramatic behaviors but as well by fraud, treachery or litigation. With restraint and moderation there should be rich rewards.

It Is Your Birthday.
Those whose birthday it is stand at the threshold of a year of rich returns for faithful and worthy past labors. Superiors, employers and those in power will be found ready to be generous and friendly in bestowing such largesse where rightfully due. It may materialize in increase of financial security, expansive business standing, or in enhanced position in the social, cultural or public affiliations, all assuring personal prestige and popularity. Impetuosity, rash moves or contention should not be allowed to interfere with the advent of such good fortune.

A child born on this day should be ambitious, efficient and fertile in organizing a plan of action bound to bring it much success and happiness in life. It will be noble, generous and good hearted.

Value In Sugar Substitutes.

By BETSY NEWMAN
In a recent book the writer takes the view that the use of sugar is a taste habit which can easily be adjusted, and points out that such substitutes as honey, molasses, corn syrup and maple syrup not only have distinctive flavors, but also provide as much energy, as sugar, and more nourishment. So as I learn of them by experiment, or from other sources I shall keep on giving you new recipes for the use of sugar substitutes. You'll find one in today's menu.

1 tbs. chili powder

Fry salt pork until crisp, remove pork and brown onions. Add beef, stir and cook slowly for 5 minutes, then add crisped pork and remaining ingredients and heat to boiling. "Pitfalls of Love" (A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers) By ADELE GARRISON

RONALD obeyed me as far as sitting down went, but I saw his fingers tighten on the arm of his chair and knew that he could not obey my adjuration to relax.

"There are just two things," he said slowly, spacing his words. "The first is this awful anxiety about Marion, and the second is—Carolyn."

Something in the way he uttered his sister's name made me come to attention. He had discovered something, or he suspected something, but all I dared say was an encouraging "Yes?"

He waited almost a minute before answering, and his face was flushed and abashed when he began to speak.

"I feel like a heel telling you this—it's betraying my little sister's confidence," he said. "But it's also a question of danger to Marion and—"

Two Loyalties at War.
His eyes were filled with the anguish which comes to any sensitive man when he has to choose between two loyalties—to his wife or his fiancée—or to the woman of his own blood—mother or sister.

"I understand perfectly, Ronald," I said quickly. "Tell me at once. You can do nothing else."

He was silent for a moment, then suddenly squared his shoulders determinedly and spoke steadily.

"It was this morning, just before elementary schools. Is not a good elementary principal the personal medium between teachers and parents, and the inspirer of both to understand the child better and treat him more as an individual person?"

A selected list of books designed to help parents and teachers understand the child better and treat him more as a sacred personality may be had by writing me in care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

Solving Parent Problems.
Q. Do you believe in paying the child for helping about the house?
A. As a rule, no. How is he to feel he is a responsible member of the family if you do? Let him have some regular jobs he can't escape. If, however, he is working to accumulate a fund for a definite purchase, he might properly be paid for a few irregular, special jobs.

Q. To what extent would you allow a child of 10 or 14 to change about the furniture and wall hangings of his or her room?
A. As much as the child liked without marring or destroying any of it or causing undue hardships to any other person.

Q. When should a child be allowed to help choose the clothes which must be bought for him?
A. As early as he likes, hoping that in his early teens he could wisely choose alone within a specified budget.

HURRICANE OF WAR CASH HITS KEY WEST, FLA.

Historical City Becomes One of States Most Important Points.

(By United Press)
KEY WEST, Fla. — The war boom has hit Key West like a tropical hurricane and lifted this southernmost city of the United States from the doldrums of decay.

The navy, which abandoned Key West when the world was talking disarmament and everlasting peace, has repossessed this Gibraltar of the Gulf of Mexico, given it a new coat of paint and, in a period of little more than a year, put some $12,000,000 in its collective pocket.

Approximately 20,000 persons not counting army and navy personnel, are crowded upon this island of four square miles. Small apartments, rented for $100 a month and up before rent-control was ordered, if you could find a vacancy. Food and clothing have soared in price.

In 1936 building permits issued here totaled $65,000. Last year they jumped to $576,000. Today barracks, mess halls and apartment houses are springing up almost overnight.

To meet the increased population's demand on the city's meager water supply, 1,500 workers are working around the clock laying a $3,500,000 pipeline through which fresh water will be brought to Key West.

In 1936 Key West was dependent upon government relief. With the cigar industry moved to Tampa and rum-running — once a profitable enterprise — ended, the population dwindled to 12,434.

A few tourists — attracted by the city's quaintness — visited Key West, but not in sufficient numbers to provide an income for the native "conchs." Buildings were standing empty and Key West had much the appearance of a "ghost town."

Today its streets are teeming with thousands of service men and civilian workers. Bicycles — still the principal mode of transportation — line its sidewalks while inside its jammed stores and restaurants, shoppers stand in line for service.

Only 90 miles from the northern coast of Cuba, Spanish is spoken in Key West almost as much as English. Cuban sandwiches, Spanish dinners and "turtletburgers" are featured on every menu.

Bars are lined three deep from dusk to dawn, and many never close their doors. Telephone and telegraph facilities are so over-taxed it sometimes requires several hours to complete a call or dispatch a message.

Now the headquarters for the seventh naval district, this historical city overnight has become one of Florida's most important points. Keywesters already have forgotten the lean years past. Key West is at war.

Post Big Reward For Capture Of Any Tire Thief
PHILADELPHIA — (INS) — The Keystone Automobile club is offering a reward of $100 for the arrest and conviction of any thief who steals tires from the cars of club members in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Maryland and the District of Columbia.

"Tires today are not just an article processed from fabric and rubber—they are the lifeblood of American motordom," said a club bulletin. "Without tires, the country's 34,000,000 motor vehicles would be immobilized, with consequences to the war effort and economic life."

A tire thief, the club asserted, must be regarded as a "criminal" whose actions must be regarded as constituting treasonable conduct in the war emergency."

MODERNIZES OLD CABOOSE CAMP CLAIBORNE, La. — (UPI) — The army has streamlined "the little red caboose." In the old caboose the brakeman sat in a cupola on a "monkey seat" overlooking the tops of the cars. In the new car built by the 711th battalion he sits in one of the six-foot wide bay windows extending a foot from both sides of the caboose.

Constructs Model Auto From 1,200 Pieces Of Wood

DAYTON — (INS) — After carvin' and whittlin' for about 250 hours, Jack Moates, piano teacher, emerged smiling from his little workshop and proudly exhibited the latest product of his hobby—a model automobile—complete in every detail.

The model contains more than 1,200 pieces — including headlights, wheels, air filter, and other parts, many of which were turned out on a home-made lathe. The car also possesses shock absorbers, dashboard, rear vision mirror and door hardware.

Inheriting the skill of wood carving from his father—who was quite a carver himself—Moates has fashioned model planes, ships, pianos, and violins.

BACKWOODS TO GET COLLEGE

Endowment Opens Way For Establishment In Adirondacks.

(By United Press)
LAKE PLACID, N. Y. — The earnings of a backwoods guide will finance Paul Smith's College of Art and Science when it opens in the heart of the Adirondack wilderness next fall.

The endowment of approximately $2,000,000 comes from the estate of the late Paul Smith, who amassed a fortune as host to city hunters and vacationers.

The board of trustees has announced that the junior college will begin operating in September. The institution will be developed under the leadership of Earl C. MacArthur, president, who left the faculty of exclusive Peddie School in New Jersey to organize the college in the mountains where he was born.

Founding of the college was directed by the deceased Phelps Smith, who wished to perpetuate the memory of his father and carry out a promise that he would help educate young people in nearby mountain communities.

The institution will be housed in Paul Smith's Hotel buildings at the little community of Paul

Smith, about 25 miles from the winter sports center of Lake Placid.

Bespectacled President MacArthur is well fitted to the task of setting up a center of learning in a section where the sparse roads run through dense evergreen forests for 10 and 20 miles without a sign of human life.

The son of a lumberman-farmer, MacArthur graduated from Yale and then went on to teach English and coach football at Peddie. His first plans call for admission of 30 students, who will be given ample financial help.

THE WAR TODAY Claim Nazis Lose 10 Million In Russia

By DE WITT MACKENZIE
(Wide World War Analyst)

John Bull's defeat in Libya has brought from readers two questions which are so important that I think they should be answered through this column.

1. Why do the British continually suffer reverses?

2. In view of the Libyan setback is there danger of Britain losing control of the eastern Mediterranean and Middle East, and if so what would that mean?

Answering number one: It's a distortion of fact for the British have great achievements to their credit.

The fundamental answer — though there may be various contributing causes — is that the British and the Allies (apart from Russia) have been suffering defeat because they are still in process of getting armed to meet enemies who had spent years building up powerful war-machines.

All of us know that if we stop to think. We've been told time and again by our military leaders that 1942 was to be a year of perils and bloody trial. Our trouble is that a few defensive successes like the Coral Sea and Midway and the British bombing triumphs over Germany make us forget the warning.

We are getting set mightily fast now, and we can rest assured that in the long run we shall win.

Question number two? Defeat in any engagement which is an integral part of a major operation is a potential breeder of disaster for the loser. The Rommel show is one arm of the pincers which the Nazi chief is trying to clamp on the Middle East and Egypt.

Yes, it's possible for the Allies to lose this strategically vital position, but it isn't probable as things stand.

As remarked in yesterday's column, I believe much will depend on air power, and if that is so Britain and America will have to reinforce the Middle East heavily and quickly.

BROADWAY —By Dorothy Kilgallen

I SUSPECT this will be a strange and eerie summer, out in those suburbs of Broadway where the barns begin.

Summer stock will be almost non-existent this season, and all through the Island and New England and those sections of Pennsylvania where formerly ingenious emoted and character actors donned the buskin, little will be heard except the cackling of geese and the low moaning of Farmer Brown's crows.

I feel in almost elegiac mood as I contemplate the scores of rural dressing rooms that this year will respond to no titanic arguments between first and second leading ladies, those battered backstages that no more will hear the curse of a stage crew vainly trying to make three baby spots do the work of twenty. Gone the bright-eyed juveniles from the Yale drama school, departed the sweet flowers of Walgreen's basement, ended the endless gossip about which of the comely apprentices the director's fancy has lighted upon, and Does His Wife Know?

The vista saddens me, for summer stock, with all its phonies and unguared hams, was good for the theater. It bolstered the egos of young hopefuls, who — stave as they might from September to June — held the precious memory of wowing the locals in the Margaret Sullivan part in "Stage Door," or winning a "showed an exciting new talent" mention from the roving Variety correspondent.

Summer theater was part of a good life, and I hope it returns soon.

spite an interesting family background and a certain aptitude for smiling into the night club camera, she has not become an institution even within the very small orbit of cafe society.

I guess people just don't have the time for glamor girls that they had back in the old days when any item about Brenda Frazier was enough to knock congress off the front pages. I hear Cecil Brown, whose broadcasts on the fall of Singapore were so sensational, will replace Elmer Davis as CBS chief commentator now that the latter is director of office of war information. Brown starts Monday. I think the navy SP's (shore patrol) look simply darling in their white duck uniforms. The soldiers, I understand, call them "Snow White."

I wonder why something isn't done to make certain calls more interesting? Only two shows in town—"Life With Father" and "Arsenic and Old Lace"—have bothered to worry about what happens on their stages after the third act is over. In all the other theaters, the actors bunch or struggle across the stage eying the audience from orchestra to mezzanine as they take their bows, then scampering off to the wings so the star or stars can make a solo curtsy. It's all very miscellaneous, and I'm in favor of flavoring the curtain call with a little imagination, comedy or atmosphere.

I've broken all my New Year's resolutions by now. Have you?

It occurs to me that there is an amusing dash of potential dynamite in the campaign called "Records for Our Fighting Men" which, starting July 20, will enlist Bing Crosby, Dinah Shore, Vaughn Monroe, the Andrews Sisters and other leading disc stars in a house-to-house canvas to recover old phonographic records for their shellack patriot. The scheme is certainly patriotic, because the estimated $500,000 gleaned from selling the platters back to the recording companies will go to buy new releases for the soldiers and sailors—but I am wondering about the reaction of the average jitterbug when Bing Crosby or Glenn Miller pops up at the front door.

Will the young master of the house politely usher in his guest, or will the suburban neighbors children and proceed to mob the swing star in that old Paramount stage-door manner? Of course, plenty of average home-owners will reply to "How do you do, I'm Bing Crosby" with a cynical "Pleased to meetcha, I'm Bob Hope," and shut the door in the celebrity's innocent face.

So I suggest that all the famous folk take along some studio stills for identification, or perhaps a letter from their pastor, just in case.

I haven't heard "Deep in the Heart of Texas" sung, played or whistled in 96 hours. And don't think it hasn't been heaven. I hear that Elaine Barrie is about to take up her dramatic career where she left off. I like the new slogan "Get in the Scrap" for the collection campaign. Whoever thought up that is a snappy-sayer, and ought to be awarded with a congressional medal, or photostatic copy of same.

Wonder what the firecracker situation will be on this July Fourth? Personally, I don't feel that this is the year to reproduce battle sounds, even in miniature; but I guess there's a whole class of American citizens (especially in small towns) which feels that if you don't blast your neighbor's ears with tin-cann explosions and small cannon, Independence day is a flop.

Something seems to have gone awry in the campaign to glorify and make a national figure of this year's deb, Oona O'Neill. De-

TREASURY FINDS BLACKMER HELD $10,000,000

Uncovers Fortune of Man Who Fled Teapot Dome Scandal, Freezes Funds.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Henry M. Blackmer, 72-year-old multi-millionaire who fled from America to escape testifying in the old Teapot Dome oil scandal today has $10,000,000 worth of reasons for returning to this country.

Cash and securities to this amount belonging to Blackmer were uncovered by the treasury department's foreign fund control in various New York banks. The treasury is conducting new investigations into Blackmer's income tax returns to determine whether additional evasions exist beyond the amount for which the missing oil witness was indicted in 1921.

Founder of the Continental Trading company, which figured prominently in the Teapot Dome scandal, Blackmer was sought by the government to testify in the case which resulted in the conviction of the late Albert B. Fall, secretary of interior in the Harding administration, for accepting a bribe in connection with government leasing of oil lands.

The assets, consisting largely of tax-exempt government securities, have been "effectively frozen" by the foreign funds control, and all government agencies having a possible claim against him have been advised that his funds are now in government hands.

Blackmer has often been termed "the man without a country" because the government revoked his passport when he refused to return as a key witness in the Fall trial. Several attempts to extradite Blackmer from France proved unavailing.

At present the expatriated oil magnate is believed to be in Switzerland, probably having fled France when the Nazis marched in. If his whereabouts can be determined, officials say it is likely that new extradition proceedings will be brought.

The funds were uncovered by the foreign funds control in its recent far-reaching investigation of all foreign monies in this country. Included in Blackmer's assets are $7,115,000 of treasury notes and several million dollars in municipal issues. The assets were concealed in "numbered" accounts and in the accounts of foreign banks. Officials believe that the oil man may be living on the interest from these securities and that their seizure may cut off his supply of funds.

HOOGSON QUILTS POST AT LELAND

Hotel's Manager For 15 Years Resigns; No Successor Appointed as Yet.

J. Reynolds Hoogson, manager of the Mansfield-Leland hotel for the past 15 years, resigned that position at a special meeting of the board of directors of the Mansfield-Leland Hotel company, held Monday afternoon. The resignation was accepted.

Until selection of a new manager operation of the hotel will be in charge of the executive committee of the hotel company.

Hoogson came to the Mansfield-Leland in December, 1926, after a number of years of hotel management experience in eastern cities, his last previous association having been with the Benjamin Franklin in Philadelphia.

Since coming here he has been active in the Ohio Hotel association, in which he served on the board of trustees, and has also participated in many civic activities, holding membership in Westbrook Country club, McVey post, American Legion, the Kiwanis and University clubs, and the Elks lodge. With his wife and daughter he has made his home at the hotel.

Plans for the future are not ready for announcement, Hoogson stated, although he intends continuing in the hotel business after taking advantage of an opportunity to enjoy a vacation and rest.

Interesting sidelight on the operation of the Mansfield-Leland is the fact that this was one of the United States that avoided reversion during the 1930-33 depression period.

CARMICHAEL THOMPSON, DEAD AT 71, HAD NOTABLE POLITICAL CAREER

(By United Press)

CLEVELAND — Col. CarmicHAEL Thompson, whose distinguished public life paralleled a successful legal and professional career, will be buried Thursday at Ironton, where he worked in the coal mines as a boy and started up the ladder in Republican politics.

Thompson died at his home in suburban Euclid yesterday after an illness of three months. He would have been 72 years old next Sept. 6. Funeral services will be held at the Thompson home tomorrow afternoon.

After a successful span in Ohio politics, Thompson was appointed treasurer of the United States by President Taft on Jan. 1, 1913. He resigned in June of the same year to enter law practice and the banking business in Cleveland. He also had been secretary to President Taft.

His public career started when he was elected Ironton city solicitor and served three terms. He was elected to the Ohio house of representatives in 1903, was re-

SOVIETS SAY OWN LOSSES 4,500,000

Report 24,000 German Tanks and 20,000 Planes Wrecked In Year of War.

(By Associated Press)

MOSCOW — Soviet Russia said today Germany had suffered 10,000,000 casualties against 4,500,000 Red losses in their year-old war.

Although conceding Adolf Hitler still mounted powerful sector offensives, Russia declared these could only postpone the "complete destruction of the Hitlerite army."

The hour of victory, it was said, has been hastened by "the conclusion of the Anglo-Soviet treaty and the agreement between the U. S. S. R. and the United States."

Of the killed, wounded and missing, Nazi dead total not less than 3,500,000, the Soviet information bureau reported in a special review.

Berlin officials, however, estimated Nov. 21 that the Russians had lost 10,000,000 men. They said March 8 that Germany's casualties totaled 1,500,000.

Phrases suggested that the Russians expected new local setbacks—perhaps the fall of the finally cracked defenses of Sevastopol.

"One thing is clear: the German army of 1942 is not what it was at the beginning of the war."

The review declared the Red army "bled the enemy to death" in its epic stand on the approaches to Moscow last November and had held the December counter-offensive started.

Mechanical losses were presented thus:

	Germany	Russia
Guns	30,500	22,000
Tanks	24,000	15,000
Planes	20,000	9,000

Figures on wounded and prisoners were not broken down, but the review said 70 per cent of the Red army's injured had been able to return to front line duty while only 40 per cent of the German wounded fought again.

Fierce fighting was reported to have continued at Sevastopol. Crimean naval base whose beleaguered garrison has been forced back on the south and yielded ground in northern fortifications before a wedge of tanks, infantry and artillery.

The information bureau said the Baltic fleet air arm was "steadily winning mastery in the air" and five fliers in the last few days have sunk or fired 10 Axis ships.

Workers in the U. S. O. campaign headquarters are constantly reminded of the need for a local service club by soldiers and sailors who see the U. S. O. sign on the Y. M. C. A. and stop in to write a letter, take a shower or while away a little time. Every week brings several such visitors, Mrs. John Pierce, U. S. O. campaign solicitation chairman, said, and recently the organization arranged for overnight accommodations for a service man who wanted to stop here on his way home from his station in Pittsburgh. A local club will be established if the current campaign for $22,000 reaches its goal thereby providing $2,000 for club maintenance.

Mansfield police thought they had an acid-throwing case on their hands this morning but it dissolved into a "perfume-throwing" affair. A Mansfield man was arrested upon the complaint of a woman who charged he had thrown a vial of acid in her face. The woman suffered no ill effects, however, and only perfume. They theorized that the man had been trying to scare the woman. No charges were filed against the man and he was released after a lecture from Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch.

Some unexpected sound effects added a special touch to the rehearsal of a dramatic class at the Y. W. C. A. day camp, which will present "Six Who Pass While the Lentils Boil." One gripping scene shows the "head executioner" about to whack off the queen's head because the king's four bells had failed to ring. Just at that moment in the rehearsal, St. Peter's church bells rang out. The younger members of the cast nearly fell off their chairs, and all of the group got a big kick out of it.

The big rush is on in Mansfield's watch repair shops. For some reason, the repair shops of jewelry stores are swamped with business, and some of them won't accept repair business unless they're given four weeks for the work. The reason is not quite clear, but one factor is that several watch repair men in the city are now in the armed services.

Fused Glass Now Replaces Jewels In War Industry

CHICAGO — (AP) — Tiny drops of fused hard glass, the American Institute of Electrical Engineers was told today, are replacing precious sapphires successfully in the production of war-needed electrical indicating instruments.

F. K. McCune and J. H. Goss of the General Electric company reported glass substitutes for sapphire instrument bearings have been developed to the point where they could be produced in quantity.

Highly polished sapphire jewel bearings had been used almost universally in such instruments as ammeters and voltmeters and had been imported, principally from Switzerland. The war cut off the supply of jewels.

McCune said, however, the instrument industry had 30 years of background to guide research because substitutes were sought that long ago for unsatisfactory quality sapphire bearings then being produced.

Material called "H." was chosen as most satisfactory substitute since it contains a large percentage of alumina, a substance found native in sapphires, which are next to diamonds in hardness.

Sport Podge

Tommy Moxley, the old Westinghouse baseball and softball centerfielding star, who enlisted in the army recently, is still in the army, but right now he's living at the Y. M. C. A. in Pittsburgh.

And that's likely to be his address for the next four months, so I hear.

Tommy was in an army camp out in Missouri for just three weeks when he was transferred to the Keystone Radio school for training for the signal corps.

"I was glad to get out of that Missouri camp at that," Tom wrote some of his Mansfield friends, "after the novelty wore off."

Tom joins quite a few of the old Westinghouse boys in the signal corps, where their knowledge of electrical equipment makes them valuable material for further training along that line.

It wasn't so many days ago that Tom was having:

Dinner in the diner, But not in Carolina.

It was one evening in Willard as he was on his way to Pittsburgh, and, writes Tom, "it was plenty tough, being that close home and not being able to say 'hello' to the boys in Mans."

Some of the boys expected him home Sunday, but he warned them he might not get home very often. Forbes field isn't so far away from that Pittsburgh Y. M. C. A. "But," the boys protest, "the Pirates were away on Sunday."

Batt'ries for Camp Perry: Cronin and Clowson. And in centerfield, Salem.

The soldiers at the camp up by Port Clinton, built that power line from the plate through centerfield around the former Ohio State leaguers: Manager Alex Clowson of Mansfield, catcher; Manager Chuck Cronin of Fostoria, pitcher, and Bill Salem of Mansfield, centerfield.

How they ever got Clowson behind the plate I wouldn't know. Must be army discipline. He caught only one or two games for the Braves last year, and didn't like it either time.

Johnny Benson, former Mt. Gilead high school basketball star, appears to find the process of recovery from a "butch" haircut a trying experience.

Ben, who was a News-Journal printer before entering the army, writes that his hair is growing out again, and he complains:

"It laid down much better when it was standing straight up."

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex.—(AP)—The Corpus Christi naval base boasts of an all-star coaching staff for its physical training program.

Lieut. Clyde Lee, whose Kilgore junior college teams won the Texas Junior College Athletic conference championship for five years, is coaching football; Lieut. Jack Gray, former Texas U. basketball coach, coaches basketball; Ensign Bobby Kamrath, former singles and doubles star on the Texas U. squad, coaches tennis; Lieut. Marty Karow, former Texas Aggie coach, is the boss of the baseball diamond and Ensign Bill Stages, former Aggie end, is physical education instructor.

Marse Joe Unworried By Slump

Yanks Still Lead By Seven Games Over Sox.

By JUDSON BAILEY (Associated Press Sports Writer.) THE New York Yankees are in the sharpest sort of a slump. They have lost six of their last eight games, five in a row last week-end, yet Manager Joseph Vincent McCarthy professes that he is not even annoyed.

There is no real reason why he should be. After losing all these games to first division clubs the world champions remain seven full games in front of the second place Boston Red Sox in the American league.

"I'm not worried at all," Marse Joe told writers with the world champions yesterday. "Our pitchers held up all right, didn't they? And you know these fellows can hit, don't you? We hit slumps just like any other club and we come out of them, too."

This is all too true. The Yankees' pitching has held up beautifully. In two of the games they lost the New York pitchers allowed only five hits; in two others they gave up only six safeties, but were beaten.

It must be some consolation for the rest of the American league, though, to have McCarthy admit that the Yankees are just like other clubs even if the standings don't show it.

The Yanks finish off their western invasion this week with series against the struggling St. Louis Browns and Chicago White Sox while the Red Sox are running into Detroit and Cleveland in succession.

In the National league the Brooklyn Dodgers have a 7½ game lead over the St. Louis Cardinals and will devote this week to repulsing the Pittsburgh Pirates and Cincinnati Reds.

Giants Spoil Reds' Record

Show No Respect For Cincinnati Hurlers.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Cincinnati pitchers ought to do something today and tomorrow about those slugging New York Giants who blot an otherwise phenomenal Redleg hurling record.

In the last eight weeks the Redlegs' fine mound staff has allowed opposition clubs only 145 runs in 48 games, and New York got 51 of these in eight contests, averaging 6.37 runs a game while none of the other six clubs could average more than three and together had an average of only 2.35 a game.

In only 10 of the four dozen games have Redleg hurlers given more than four runs—and Mel Ott's veteran clouters figured in five of these.

Against the other six clubs the Redleg pitchers' ability to prevent runs is amazing.

Here's a pretty big pitching record in 40 games—New York contests excluded: Six shutouts, eight one-runners, a dozen two-runners and six three-runners.

Old Ray Starr's been the bell-weather of the Redleg hurling crew. In completing 10 of a dozen starts since May 1 and winning nine, he's yielded only 15 runs.

Paul Derringer in the five completed games of his last six starts has yielded a total of only nine runs and issued but four walks. Elmer Riddle in finishing three of his last six assignments gave just six runs. Bucky Walters and Johnny Vander Meer have allowed 17 runs apiece in the eight games each has completed since May 1.

Derringer is today's probable against southpaw Carl Hubbell, making his first 1942 start against the Redlegs.

Central Ohio Seniors Tee Off

COLUMBUS—(INS)—A record breaking entry field is expected to tee off in the fourth annual Ohio Seniors golf tournament at Scioto country club, Columbus, Thursday.

Already the enrollment for this year's tourney is about 20 ahead of last year's record-making figure, according to T. Fred Reese, secretary of the Ohio Golf association, sponsors of the event. A total of 112 faced the barrier in last year's event.

The senior's defending champion, Bob Stranahan of Toledo, has filed his entry in an attempt to be the only champion to ever successfully defend his title. Raleigh Lee, Columbus, 1939 winner, will be on hand as will the 1940 king, Joe Wells of East Liverpool. The prize list, in war bonds and stamps, will be in the neighborhood of $800-$900 and the total dividends, including the mammoth banquet Thursday evening, will aggregate $1,500, Reese predicted.

BUCYRUS SHOOTER WINS AT SANDUSKY

SANDUSKY—(AP)—W. A. Smith of Bucyrus today held the Mallory revolving trophy for his score of 48 out of a possible 50 targets in the Okoboji Indians trapshoot at Cedar Point. Dan Bittinger of Woodville won the Tom Marshall trophy and the high-over-all trophy yesterday. C. T. Stevens of Zanesville captured the Hommel trophy and C. Crawford of Oak Park, Ill., the paleface trophy.

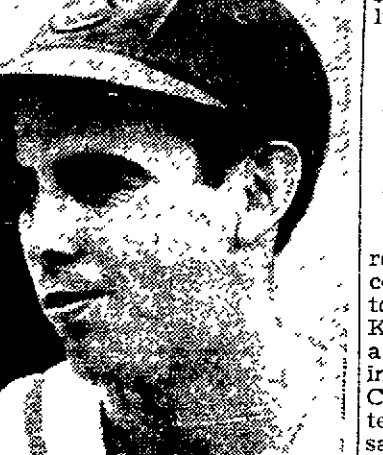

Job Depends On 'Russian'

Peanuts Plays When Novikoff Doesn't.

(Wide World Features) CHICAGO—"Why," asks 5 foot 8½ inch Harry Lowery, "should they call me 'Peanuts' when there's a Jay like that Dalasandro around?" Dominick Dalasandro is five-six and is known as the "human fireplug."

Anyway, Peanuts Lowery it is on the Chicago Cubs baseball team. He weighs only 155 pounds and the reason for the nickname "Peanuts" is easily understood. But he takes a wicked slash at the ball when he goes to bat and Manager Jim Wilson likes the California rookie's spirit.

Twenty-three years old, the black-browed Lowery is in organized baseball for the sixth year. He played infield for Moline of the Three-Eye league in 1937, for Ponca City and St. Joseph of the

PEANUTS LOWERY

Western association in 1938 and 1939 and for Los Angeles of the Pacific Coast league in 1940.

A year ago the Angels switched him to the outfield and he really clicked. The little fellow had plenty of speed and was a ball hawk. He finished the season with a .310 batting average and made the league's all-star team. The Chicago Cubs' interest perked up and he was called to spring training this year.

Sticking with the club, the diminutive youngster has been in and out of the Cubs' lineup, has rise and fall coming in reverse ratio to that of the Mad Russian, Lou Novikoff, with whom he shares the left field duties.

A quiet little fellow, he holds his tongue most of the time on the bench, "just waiting till I get used to it," he explains. The Cubs think he's a handy lad to have around, and he fits in well with the other youngsters of the youthful Chicago National league team.

Marchy Named Stanford Coach

Promotion Produces Little Surprise.

SAN FRANCISCO—(AP)—The appointment of Marchmont (Marchy) Schwartz as acting coach at Stanford university, filled the last football vacancy on the Pacific coast today.

Schwartz' promotion from backfield coach at Stanford caused little surprise since he had been the leading candidate for the post since Jim Lawson's departure to the navy.

Schwartz was expected to carry on the Clark Shugrue tradition at Stanford by using the T-formation, although he was known previously to be an advocate of the single-wing.

Schwartz was head coach at Creighton university, Omaha, Neb. from 1935 to 1939 after serving a year under Shugrue at the University of Chicago.

SCHROEDER LEADS IN COLLEGE NET TOURNEY

NEW ORLEANS—(INS)—Stanford's Ted Schroeder, the nation's No. 1 amateur, dominated the field today as the National Intercollegiate tennis championship moved into the second round with several carry-over opening round matches still to be played.

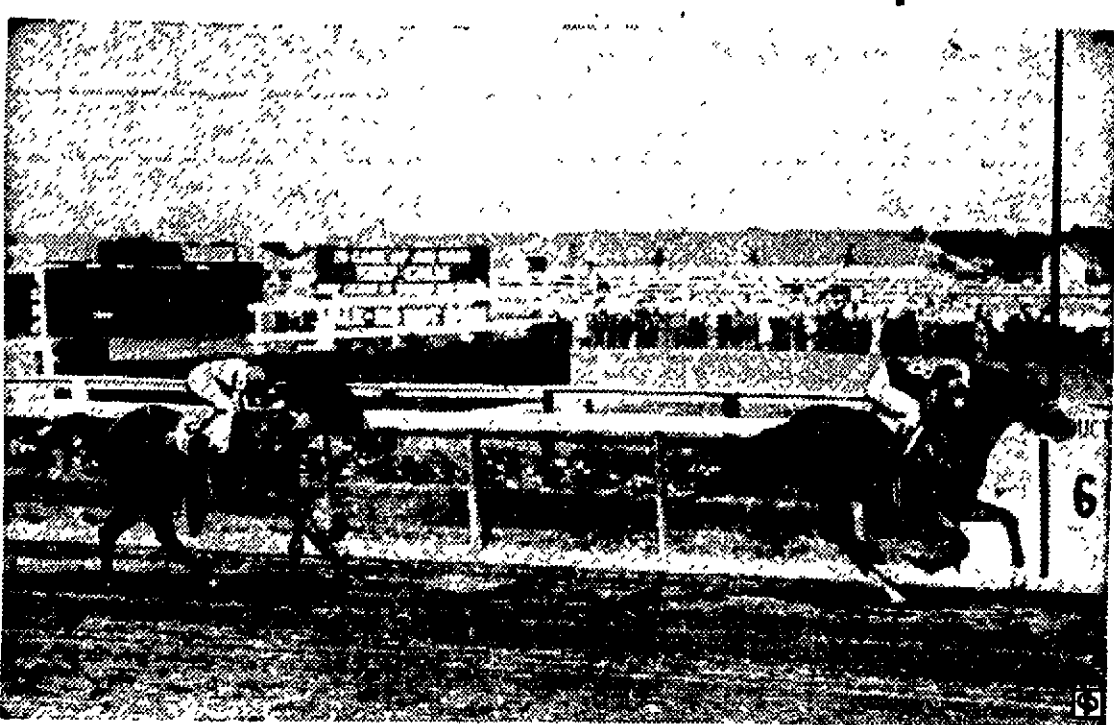

Schroeder was to match strokes today with Bob Odman, University of Washington star. On the basis of the form he displayed yesterday in eliminating David Bryant, Jr., of Austin College, 6-1, 6-0, Schroeder was heavily favored to beat Odman. The latter moved forward by ousting Glen Parks of Notre Dame, 6-4, 6-2.

GAMES POSTPONED

SPRINGFIELD—(AP)—Erie's Sailors, new leaders in the Mid-Atlantic league, moved into Springfield today for a three-game series. Charleston, riding two percentage points behind the Sailors, moved to Zanesville, while Canton moved to Dayton.

All games were postponed last night.

Three-Year-Old Crown Given Shakeup

When Valdina Orphan romped home first in the Dwyer Stakes at Aqueduct race track, Long Island, N. Y., beating Shut Out by two lengths, the three-year-old racing championship for 1942 was thrown into a muddle that is a muddle. Valdina Orphan, third in the Derby, won the Dwyer in record time of 2:01.4 for the mile and a quarter distance. Next big race on the card is the Arlington Classic where Alsab, Shut Out and Valdina Orphan are expected to settle things. Shut Out is the Derby winner, Alsab the Preakness king.

Birds Showing Signs Of Life

Columbus May Still Figure in Flag Race.

(By Associated Press) When the time comes to crown a 1942 champion, the American association still may have to consider last year's winner—the Columbus Red Birds.

The Red Birds, involved in a strictly second division struggle thus far, suddenly steadied, won six in a row and now are no more than six and a half games out of first place.

Their winning streak is the more remarkable since it has been accomplished against the league's top two teams—Milwaukee and Kansas City. After taking five in a row from Milwaukee and knocking the Brewers from the lead, Columbus continued its spurt yesterday against pace-setting Kansas City.

Red Munger engaged Rugger Ardoziza in a scoreless pitching duel for seven innings and finally won out for the Red Birds, 1 to 0, when Tommy Heath walked in the eighth and came home on Pep Young's triple. Each pitcher allowed but four hits. It was Munger's eighth triumph against two defeats.

The win lifted Columbus to a .500 rating and within a half game of fourth place Louisville, which clung to its first division berth by defeating St. Paul, 2 to 0.

Minneapolis outhit Indianapolis, 14 to 6, but lost, 4 to 3, when the Indians rallied to tie the score in the ninth and won in the 10th.

Last place Toledo took time out from its association chores and spanked the pace setting New York Yankees of the American league, 5 to 1.

National League Has Stick Race

NEW YORK—(AP)—The National League at last has produced a rivalry for the batting leadership to equal the hot scrap Joe Gordon and Bobby Doerr have been having in the American League for so many weeks.

The only difference is that the struggle for honors in the senior circuit is between two members of the same team—Pete Reiser and Joe Medwick of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Reiser at present is on top with an average of .356, six points above Medwick.

Gordon and Doerr both slipped last week, but held their respective positions in the American League race with the Yankee star on top at .367 and Doerr second at .351.

College Girl Sets Pace In Tourney

CHICAGO—(INS)—National Intercollegiate Champion Eleanor Dudley led the field of low scorers today into the first round of match play in the annual Women's eastern golf championship tournament with a par medal score of 76. She teed off with Marjorie Row of Detroit as her opponent.

Miss Dudley's 76 was two under the cards of two other favorites, Phyllis Otto of Omaha, Neb., and Dorothy Kirby of Atlanta, Ga., in qualifying play yesterday at the Elmhurst club.

The first 18-hole round of match play in the championship and run-up to flights was played today. Eighteen holes will be played daily until Saturday when the 36-hole finals are scheduled.

As Dodds Won In A.A.U. Mile

Track and field fans are still talking about the surprise victory of Gilbert Dodds, Boston divinity student and former Ashland, O., college star, in the 1,500-meter championship at the National A. A. U. track and field meet in New York. Dodds whipped a star-studded field, including Leroy Wedel of Southern California, shower finishing second, and Les MacMitchell, the New York U. mile king who finished third.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR. NEW YORK—(Wide World)—When little Otey Crisman shot that 65 in the Hale America golf and then blew himself right out of the picture, it didn't surprise his pals back home, who remember his club-throwing records.... In the days of the pee-wee golf craze, Otey tried to collect a $10 prize offered to anyone who could make par on one layout and he busted up a half dozen putters in the attempt.... Billy Conn reports that when his fighting days are over he always can get a job as a window washer. He had four weeks of it at the Fort Jay hospital while that bunged-up hand was healing.... Henrie Groh, who never was a giant among ball players, once passed up signing Dom DiMaggio for the Giants because he considered Dom too small for the big leagues.

Tribe Regains Full Strength

Heath Ready For Action, May Get Further Rest. CLEVELAND—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians were a bit closer to full strength today as they opened a three-game series with the Philadelphia Athletics.

Fresh from three victories over the world champion Yankees, the Redlegs were able to call on their leading winner, Jim Bagby, to face Bob Harris of the A's.

Also ready for action was Catcher Jim Hegan, out for a week with an infected back. Gene Desautels, the Tribe's number one catcher, is still on the injury list with a broken leg.

Jeff Heath, nursing a strained back, returned to the plate as a pinch hitter Sunday, but was given a walk. He probably will be kept for emergency duty, however, since Buster Mills did a capable job in the left garden and at the plate.

OFFERED CONTRACT

COLUMBUS—(AP)—General Manager Branch Rickey of the St. Louis Cardinals said today he had offered a new contract to Ester Crabtree of Nelsonville, O., former manager of the International league's Rochester team, but that Crabtree continued to remain a free agent. Rickey said he offered the veteran outfielder the same salary he received before his appointment as Rochester manager.

HENS LICK YANKS

Tris Knows Boxing Too

Leads Cleveland Out of Fistic Wilderness.

By RAY BLOSSER (Wide World Features) CLEVELAND—Boxing is deeply indebted to Tris Speaker, a baseball immortal, for its remarkable renaissance here.

"The important thing is to get officials you know can be trusted to give the decisions as they see them and not be swayed by the cheering or booing of the crowd. Officials whose honesty must be beyond any doubt," explains Tris, the man who led the Cleveland Indians to their only pennant back in 1920.

A soap box orator drew better than a fight card when Mayor Harold H. Burton, now senator from Ohio, summoned the 54-year-old former outfielder several years ago with a request to head the city's three-man boxing commission.

Speaker declined. He explained that preceding commissions had been politically appointed and politically minded and that the "Annie Oakley list," for example, was so bountiful that 700 non-paying spectators monopolized the first 10 or 11 rows—in front of the people who plunked down for ringside seats.

The mayor tried again, asking Speaker to take the chairmanship as a favor to the city, promising it would be divorced from politics. Tris accepted, and a fast-talking gentleman named Larry Atkins soon popped up with some astute matchmaking. The result: many observers, including Tris, believe Cleveland is the best-drawing fight city in the nation.

"We've been able to get good officials," declares Tris. "I do know some of our referees have been approached by gamblers who wanted to see if a close fight could be called their way, but the officials were just not at home."

"Even the referee doesn't know which bout he's going to work until he comes to the ring. That takes away any temptation that might be conceived because they can truthfully say they don't know whether they are going to work the big fight."

The "big fight" recently has included Bob Pastor versus Lem Franklin; Pastor against Jimmy Bivins; the latter with Gus Lesnevich, and other first rate attractions which habitually draw indoor crowds of 12,000 to 14,000.

Under Speaker, the commission has made several changes. The main fighters must appear in Cleveland 72 hours before the bout so everybody has a chance to observe their condition—"and if we thought a man was not training properly and was out of condition we would call off the fight."

Whether the boxer or his manager signs the contract, the purse is paid to the boxer—just to avoid any misunderstandings. The pass list was abolished and the promoter, himself, can give at the most only 100 tickets in the first 10 rows. And the promoter doesn't own any of the scrapers.

"We've been robbed!" they screamed as they rushed into his office.

"How amusing," was O'Doul's comment. "Imagine a couple of robbers complaining about being robbed."

Wildcat Golf Star Leading

Dick Haskell Paces College Tournament.

SOUTH BEND, Ind.—(INS)—Dick Haskell of Northwestern university, leading the field by two strokes, was shooting for a possible new qualifying record today as the 45th national intercollegiate golf tournament moved into its second and final trial round at the South Bend Country club.

Haskell, 26-year-old June graduate, stroked the club's Chain O'Lakes course in a brilliant 69 which was two under par.

The Purple tee ace was out in 34, two shots under the regulation figures and fashioned himself an even-par 35 on his homeward journey. Haskell's outgoing nine card, however did not eclipse the performance of Earl Stewart, Louisiana State's defending champion. Stewart, who last year snared the driving contest and the medalist honors, took the first nine in a sizzling four-under par 32 but trouble found him on the back nine which he closed with a birdie and a depressing 39 for a 71 total.

Matching Stewart's 71 were five other collegians who have to be reckoned with before the title is settled Saturday. They were Charlie Lind, Denver's Big Seven champion; Bob Beekman of Stanford, who annexed the Pacific Coast conference title; the University of Baltimore's Eddie Johnson; Ray Brownell of Stanford, who reached the 1941 finals; and George Traphagen, another Stanford entrant.

The University of Stanford squad was making another strong bid for the team championship which will be decided today along with the 64 qualifiers for the individual championship match play bracket.

At the half-way mark, the Indians who last year set an amazing record of 580 for 36-holes of medal play, held the narrow lead of 291 against Louisiana State's 292. Northwestern was two strokes behind with 293 while Minnesota and Yale trailed with 295 and 296, respectively.

First round qualifying scores of Ohio entrants posted yesterday: Robert Drummond, Oberlin, 38-34—72. John Carlisle, Oberlin, 35-37—72. Billy Gilbert, Ohio State, 40-34—74. Charles Knab Cincinnati, 38-36—74. Johnny Krisko, Ohio State, 39-38—77. Richard Holmes, Oberlin, 40-38—78. John Steekle, Ohio State, 43-38—81. Dick Peterson, Ohio State, 43-38—82.

SOLDIERS FIND A MOTHER WHO WILL DARN SOCKS

'Mom' Wilcox Has Won the Hearts of Marines in Honolulu.
(By United Press)
HONOLULU, T. H.—Until Mrs. Harriet D. Wilcox came along most of the soldiers in Honolulu just threw their socks away when they got holes in the heel or their big toes began protruding. Now "Mom" Wilcox has taken the situation over and is the champion sock darning in the territory.
Mom, small, gray-haired and matronly, came here from Berkeley several months ago, and she and her husband immediately opened their little home to the armed forces, telling the boys to "make themselves at home."
The marines, being the first gang anywhere, wound out about the Wilcox home first; then the word got around that anybody in a uniform could walk in, peel off their shirts, raid the icebox and make themselves right at home and forget the war for a few minutes. That was how Mrs. Wilcox found out about the sock problem.
"Several of the boys got to talking about socks one day," she said, "and one of them asked me if I'd show him how to darn a pair. I never realized until then what a tough time the fellows were having with their socks. I offered to do this lads darning for him and I've had a steady job of it ever since."
"It's really nothing," she blushed, "but I can do it well and it gives the boys an excuse to come around and Mr. Wilcox and I like to know them and have them around."
Mom Wilcox's idea is to give the army and navy a taste of the home life they knew back on the mainland and she's doing an admirable job of it.
Her biggest problem is to get the socks before the holes get too big.
"It's hard to make some of these young fellows realize the truth of the old adage 'a stitch in time saves nine,'" she said, "and some of the holes brought me for darning are the size of post holes."
Her ambition is to start sock darning centers in which those women living near army and navy bases capable of handling a needle and darning thread will offer their services to the enlisted men.
"An army might travel on its stomach," she said, "but it will move much more comfortably on a darned sock instead of one with a hole in it. If all the women would get together and offer to darn the boys' socks it would make military life a lot simpler for them all besides saving them plenty of money which they can't afford to spend for new socks."
LUMBER AT RECORD PACE
PORTLAND, Ore. (U.P.)—Lake county's lumber production probably will be the largest in history this year. The 1942 cut is estimated at 150,000,000,000 feet, as compared to 130,000,000,000 feet in 1941.

TRAFFIC TOLL UP IN BRITAIN

Survey Reveals War Tends To Encourage Reckless Motor Operation.
(By United Press)
WASHINGTON—The Federal Bureau of Investigation reports that a study of a huge traffic death increase in Britain shows there is a tendency to encourage reckless driving.
Figures recently received by the FBI disclose that in Britain's second war year, September, 1940, to August, 1941, 10,073 persons were killed in traffic accidents, an increase of 51.9 per cent over the corresponding pre-war period.
Fifty-three per cent of all victims were pedestrians. Deaths of this type, involving persons over 15, jumped 81.5 per cent over the pre-war year, while the number involving children 15 years and younger increased 52.3 per cent.
"The English traffic statistics," the FBI reported in its law enforcement bulletin, "reflects that while accidents were fewer they were more deadly and generally resulted from five factors in addition to the recklessness which war has a tendency to encourage."
These factors were listed as follows:
1—Heavier character of road traffic.
2—Faster driving (frequently necessary on the part of the military).
3—Lower driving standards.
4—Fewer traffic police.
5—Bad mechanical condition of some vehicles.
The FBI now is conducting traffic schools throughout the country for the purpose of instructing law enforcement agencies in handling wartime traffic. All the factors listed as contributory causes in Britain are receiving special attention.

Advices Co-Eds To Wed Only If They Are Ready

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (U.P.)—Mrs. Mary J. McCrea, who is ready for matrimony, but don't wed if you are not prepared, was the advice on war marriages given to Indiana university co-eds by Mrs. Ruth O. McCrea, counselor to women at Northwestern university.
"There is no simple rule or principle for a good marriage," she said. "There are hazards in all marriages and war increases these hazards. But, even so, we marry on faith."
"In the years ahead, it is going to be increasingly difficult to work out our relationships with men, due to men and women being called for the armed forces and for industrial defense work," Mrs. McCrea said. "There will be dislocation, families and delinquencies are bound to result."
Mrs. McCrea expressed the hope that all Indiana university co-eds marry.
"But marry wisely," she advised. "One of the great advantages of a co-educational institution is that it can serve as a matrimonial bureau."

Predicts Vast Expansion Of Army Air Corps

DENVER, Colo. (U.P.)—Vast expansion of the United States Army Air Corps within the next few months is predicted by Major General John F. Curry.
The high-ranking officer recently relinquished his post as head of the nation's civil air patrol and came to Denver from Washington, D. C., to assume command of district No. 4 of the reorganized army air corps technical training division. He has charge of all army air corps technical training schools west of the Mississippi river.
The secretary of war has said that the army air corps will be expanded from about 300,000 men to between one and two million as soon as this program can be carried out. General Curry declared, "This means that every technical school in the country must be expanded accordingly, both in personnel and training facilities."
He added that almost unbelievable expansion will be underway within a few months.

Variety In Rubber Scrap Drive

Here's pictorial evidence of the wide variety of scrap rubber items folks are turning in daily at Mansfield's filling station in the current scrap rubber collection. Herbert A. Dillon, manager of the Hi-Speed Service station at Second and Hedges exhibits three of the tires that have been turned in at his station. The large tire is from a tractor, the one beside it from a truck, and the one Dillon is holding is from a youngster's tricycle.

Marse Joe Unworried By Slump

Yanks Still Lead By Seven Games Over Bosox.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)
THE New York Yankees are in the sharpest sort of a slump. They have lost six of their last eight games, five in a row last week-end, yet Manager Joseph Vincent McCarthy professes that he is not even annoyed.

There is no real reason why he should be. After losing all these games to first division clubs the world champions remain seven full games in front of the second place Boston Red Sox in the American league.

"I'm not worried at all," Marse Joe told writers with the world champions yesterday. "Our pitchers held up all right, didn't they? And you know these fellows can hit, don't you? We hit slumps just like any other club and we come out of them, too."

This is all too true. The Yankees' pitching has held up beautifully. In two of the games they lost the New York pitchers averaged only five hits; in two others they gave up only six safeties, but were beaten.

It must be some consolation for the rest of the American league, though, to have McCarthy admit that the Yankees are just like other clubs even if the standings don't show it.

The Yankees finish off their western invasion this week with series against the struggling St. Louis Browns and Chicago White Sox while the Red Sox are running into Detroit and Cleveland in succession.

In the National league the Brooklyn Dodgers have a 7½ game lead over the St. Louis Cardinals and will devote this week to repulsing the Pittsburgh Pirates and Cincinnati Reds.

Giants Spoil Reds' Record

Show No Respect For Cincinnati Hurlers.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Cincinnati pitchers ought to do something today and tomorrow about those slugging New York Giants who blot an otherwise phenomenal Redleg hurling record.

In the last eight weeks the Redlegs' fine mound staff has allowed opposition clubs only 145 runs in 48 games, and New York got 51 of these in eight contests, averaging 6.37 runs a game while none of the other six clubs could average more than three and together had an average of only 2.35 a game.

In only 10 of the four dozen games have Redleg hurlers given more than four runs—and Mel Ott's veteran clouters figured in five of these.

Against the other six clubs the Redleg pitchers' ability to prevent runs is amazing. Here's a pretty big pitching record in 40 games—New York contests excluded: Six shutouts, eight one-runners, a dozen two-runners and six three-runners.

Old Ray Starr's been the bell-weather of the Redleg hurling crew. In completing 10 of a dozen starts since May 1 and winning nine, he's yielded only 15 runs.

Paul Derringer in the five completed games of his last six starts has yielded a total of only nine runs and issued but four walks. Elmer Riddle in finishing three of his last six assignments gave just six runs. Bucky Walters and Johnny Vander Meer have allowed 17 runs apiece in the eight games each has completed since May 1.

Derringer is today's probable against southpaw Carl Hubbell, making his first 1942 start against the Redlegs.

Central Ohio Seniors Tee Off

COLUMBUS—(INS)—A record breaking entry field is expected to tee off in the fourth annual Ohio Seniors golf tournament at Scioto country club, Columbus, Thursday.

Already the enrollment for this year's tourney is about 20 ahead of last year's record-making figure, according to T. Fred Roff, secretary of the Ohio Golf association, sponsors of the event. A total of 112 faced the barrier in last year's event.

The senior's defending champion Bob Stranahan of Toledo, has filed his entry in an attempt to be the only champion to ever successfully defend his title. Raleigh Lee, Columbus, 1939 winner, will be on hand as will the 1940 king, Joe Wells of East Liverpool. The prize list, in war bonds and stamps, will be in the neighborhood of $800-$900 and the total dividends, including the mammoth banquet Thursday evening, will aggregate $1,500, Reese predicted.

BUCYRUS SHOOTER WINS AT SANDUSKY

SANDUSKY—(UP)—W. A. Smith of Bucyrus today held the Mallory revolving trophy for his score of 48 out of a possible 50 targets in the Okuboji Indians trapshoot at Cedar Point. Dan Bittlinger of Woodville won the Tom Marshall trophy and the high-over-all trophy yesterday. C. T. Stevens of Zanesville captured the Hommel trophy and C. Crawford of Oak Park, Ill., the paleface trophy.

Job Depends On 'Russian'

Peanuts Plays When Novikoff Doesn't.

(Wide World Features)
CHICAGO—"Why," asks 5 foot 8½ inch Harry Lowery, "should they call me 'Peanuts' when there's a guy like Dal-lasandro around?" Dominque Dallasandro is five-six and is known as the "human fireplug."

Anyway, Peanuts Lowery it is on the Chicago Cubs baseball team. He weighs only 155 pounds and the reason for the nickname "Peanuts" is easily understood. But he takes a wicked slash at the ball when he goes to bat and Manager Jim Wilson likes the California rookie's spirit.

Twenty-three years old, the black-browed Lowery is an organized baseball for the sixth year. He played infield for Moline of the Three-Eye league in 1937, for Ponca City and St. Joseph of the

PEANUTS LOWERY
Western association in 1938 and 1939 and for Los Angeles of the Pacific Coast league in 1940.

A year ago the Angels switched him to the outfield and he really clicked. The little fellow had plenty of speed and was a ball hawk. He finished the season with a .310 batting average and made the league's all-star team. The Chicago Cubs' interest peaked up and he was called to spring training this year.

Sticking with the club, the diminutive youngster has been in and out of the Cubs' lineup, his rise and fall coming in reverse ratio to that of the Mad Russian, Lou Novikoff, with whom he shares the left field duties.

A quiet little fellow, he holds his tongue most of the time on the bench, "just waiting till I get used to it," he explains. The Cubs think he's a handy lad to have around, and he fits in well with the other youngsters on the youthful Chicago National league team.

Marchy Named Stanford Coach

Promotion Produces Little Surprise.

SAN FRANCISCO—(UP)—The appointment of Marchmont (Marchy) Schwartz as acting coach at Stanford university, filled the last football vacancy on the Pacific coast today.

Schwartz' promotion from backfield coach at Stanford caused little surprise since he had been the leading candidate for the top post since Jim Lawson's departure to the navy.

Schwartz was expected to carry on the Clark Shaughnessy tradition at Stanford by using the T-formation, although he was known previously to be an advocate of the single-wing.

Schwartz was head coach at Creighton university, Omaha, Neb. from 1935 to 1939 after serving a year under Shaughnessy at the University of Chicago.

SCHROEDER LEADS IN COLLEGE NET TOURNEY

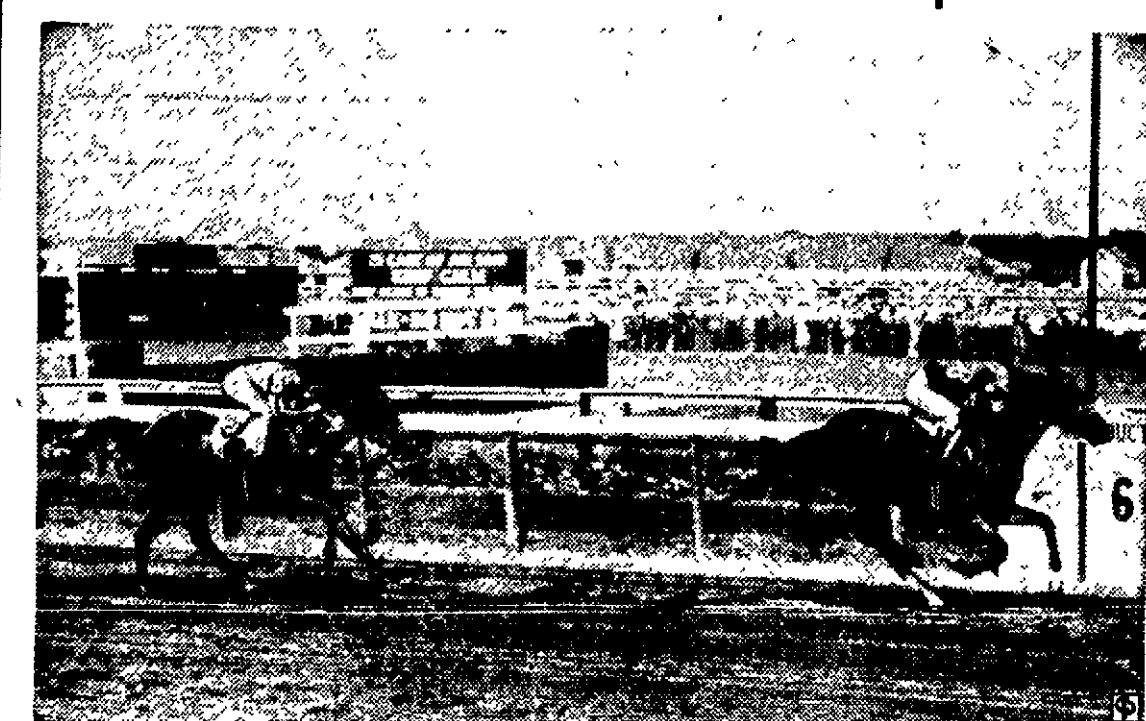

NEW ORLEANS—(INS)—Stanford's Ted Schroeder, the nation's No. 1 amateur, dominated the field today as the National Intercollegiate tennis championship moved into the second round with several carry-over opening round matches still to be played.

Schroeder was to match strokes today with Bob Odman, University of Washington star. On the basis of the form he displayed yesterday in eliminating David Bryant, Jr. of Austin College, 6-1, 6-0, Schroeder was heavily favored to beat Odman. The latter moved forward by ousting Olen Parks of Notre Dame, 6-4, 6-2.

GAMES POSTPONED

SPRINGFIELD—(AP)—Erie's Sailors, new leaders in the Mid-Atlantic league, moved into Springfield today for a three-game series. Charleston, riding two percentage points behind the Sailors, went to Zanesville, while Canton moved to Dayton. All games were postponed last night.

Three-Year-Old Crown Given Shakeup

When Valdina Orphan romped home first in the Dwyer Stakes at Aqueduct race track, Long Island, N. Y., beating Shut Out by two lengths, the three-year-old racing championship for 1942 was thrown into a muddle that is a muddle. Valdina Orphan, third in the Derby, won the Dwyer in record time of 2:01.4 for the mile and a quarter distance. Next big race on the card is the Arlington Classic where Alsab, Shut Out and Valdina Orphan are expected to settle things. Shut Out is the Derby winner, Alsab the Preakness king.

Birds Showing Signs Of Life

Columbus May Still Figure in Flag Race.

(By Associated Press)
When the time comes to crown a 1942 champion, the American association still may have to consider last year's winner—the Columbus Red Birds.

The Red Birds, involved in a strictly second division struggle thus far, suddenly steadied, won six in a row and now are no more than six and a half games out of first place.

Their winning streak is the more remarkable since it has been accomplished against the league's top two teams—Milwaukee and Kansas City. After taking five in a row from Milwaukee and knocking the Brewers from the lead, Columbus continued its spurt yesterday against pace-setting Kansas City.

Red Mungler engaged Rucker Arbizola in a scoreless pitching duel for seven innings and finally won out for the Red Birds, 1 to 0, when Tommy Heath walked in the eighth and came home on Pep Young's triple. Each pitcher allowed but four hits. It was Mungler's eighth triumph against two defeats.

The win lifted Columbus to a .500 rating and within a half game of fourth place Louisville, which clung to its first division berth by defeating St. Paul, 2 to 0.

Minneapolis outbait Indianapolis, 14 to 6, but lost, 4 to 3, when the Indians rallied to tie the score in the ninth and won in the 10th. Last place Toledo took time out from its association chores and spanked the pace setting New York Yankees of the American league, 5 to 1.

National League Has Stick Race

NEW YORK—(AP)—The National League at last has produced a rivalry for the batting leadership to equal the hot scrap Joe Gordon and Bobby Doerr have been having in the American League for so many weeks.

The only difference is that the struggle for honors in the senior circuit is between two members of the same team—Pete Reiser and Joe Medwick of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Reiser at present is on top with an average of .356, six points above Medwick. Gordon and Doerr both slipped last week, but held their respective positions in the American League race with the Yankee star on top at .367 and Doerr second at .351.

No others could get close to the leaders in either league.

College Girl Sets Pace In Tourney

CHICAGO—(INS)—National Intercollegiate Champion Eleanor Dudley led the field of low scorers today into the first round of match play in the annual Women's eastern golf championship tournament with a par medal score of 76. She teed off with Marjorie Row of Detroit as her opponent.

Miss Dudley's 76 was two under the cards of two other favorites, Phyllis Otto of Omaha, Neb., and Dorothy Kirby of Atlanta, Ga., in qualifying play yesterday at the Elmhurst club.

The first 18-hole round of match play in the championship and runner-up flights was played today. Eighteen holes will be played daily until Saturday when the 36-hole finals are scheduled.

As Dodds Won In A.A.U. Mile

Track and field fans are still talking about the surprise victory of Gilbert Dodds, Boston divinity student and former Ashland, O., college star, in the 1,500-meter championship at the National A. A. U. track and field meet in New York. Dodds whipped a star-studded field, including Leroy Wed of Southern California, shown finishing second, and Les MacMittell, the New York U. mile king who finished third.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
NEW YORK—(Wide World)—When little Otey Crisman shot that 65 in the Hale America golf and then blew himself right out of the picture, it didn't surprise his pals back home, who remember his club-throwing records... In the days of the pee-wee golf craze, Otey tried to collect a $10 prize offered to anyone who could make par on one layout and he busted up a half dozen putters in the attempt. Billy Conn reports that when his fighting days are over he always can get a job as a window washer. He had four weeks of it at the Fort Jay hospital while that bunged-up hand was healing. . . . Heime Groh, who never was a giant among ball players, once passed up signing Dom DiMaggio for the Giants because he considered Dom too small for the big leagues.

Tribe Regains Full Strength

Heath Ready For Action, May Get Further Rest.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians were a bit closer to full strength today as they opened a three-game series with the Philadelphia Athletics.

Fresh from three victories over the world champion Yankees, the Redskins were able to call on their leading winner, Jim Bagby, to face Bob Harris of the A's.

Also ready for action was Catcher Jim Hegan, out for a week with an infected back. Gene Desautels, the Tribe's number one catcher, is still on the injury list with a broken leg. Jeff Heath, nursing a strained back, returned to the plate as a pinch hitter Sunday, but was given for emergency duty, however, since Buster Mills did a capable job in the left garden and at the plate.

OFFERED CONTRACT

COLUMBUS—(AP)—General Manager Branch Ruckey of the St. Louis Cardinals said today he had offered a new contract to Estel Crabtree of Nelsonville, O., former manager of the International league's Rochester team, but that Crabtree continued to remain a free agent. Ruckey said he offered the veteran outfielder the same salary he received before his appointment as Rochester manager.

HENS LICK YANKS

TOLEDO—(UP)—Freddie Sanford held the New York Yankees to nine hits and didn't allow them a run until the ninth inning yesterday as the Toledo Mud Hens licked the world champions, 5-1, in an exhibition game. Johnny Lindell of the Yanks was reached for 11 hits by the Hens.

JOE LOUIS LEAVES FOR NEW ARMY POST

NEW YORK—(INS)—Corporal Joe Louis was enroute to Fort Riley, Kas., today to complete his basic military training in the U. S. army cavalry. He will report at the army post Wednesday.

Louis' departure was on the fifth anniversary of his becoming heavyweight champion. He won the title from James J. Braddock in Chicago, June 22, 1937.

Tris Knows Boxing Too

Leads Wildness Out of Fistic Wilderness.

By RAY BLOSSER
(Wide World Features)
CLEVELAND—Boxing is deeply indebted to Tris Speaker, a baseball immortal, for its remarkable renaissance here.

"The important thing is to get officials you know can be trusted to give the decisions as they see them and not be swayed by the cheering or booing of the crowd. Officials whose honesty must be beyond any doubt," explains Tris, the man who led the Cleveland Indians to their only pennant back in 1920.

A soap box orator drew better than a tight card when Mayor Harold H. Burton, now senator from Ohio, summoned the 54-year-old former outfielder several years ago with a request to head the city's three-man boxing commission.

Speaker declined. He explained that preceding commissions had been politically appointed and politically minded and that the "Annie Oakley list," for example, was so bountiful that 700 non-paying spectators monopolized the first 10 or 11 rows—in front of the people who plunked down for ringside seats.

The mayor tried again, asking Speaker to take the chairmanship as a favor to the city, promising it would be divorced from politics. Tris accepted, and a fast-talking gentleman named Larry Atkins soon popped up with some astute matchmaking. The result: many observers, including Tris, believe Cleveland is the best-drawing fight city in the nation.

"We've been able to get good officials," declares Tris. "I do know some of our referees have been approached by gamblers who wanted to see if a close fight could be called their way, but the officials were just not at home."

"Even the referee doesn't know which bout he's going to work until he comes to the ring. That takes away any temptation that might be presented because they can truthfully say they don't know whether they are going to work the big fight."

The "big fight" recently has included Bob Pastor versus Lem Franklin, Pastor against Jimmy Bravins; the latter with Gus Les-nich, and other first rate attractions which habitually draw indoor crowds of 12,000 to 14,000.

Under Speaker, the commission has made several changes. The main fighters must appear in Cleveland 72 hours before the bout so everybody has a chance to observe their condition—and if we thought a man was not training properly and was out of condition we would call off the fight."

Whether the boxer or his manager signs the contract, the purse is paid the boxer—just to avoid any misunderstandings. The past list was abolished and the promoter, himself, can give at the most only 100 tickets in the first 10 rows. And the promoter doesn't own any of the scrapper's.

In business life, Tris is the Ohio representative for a Michigan steel company. Now that he's out of baseball, does the "Gray Eagle" (his sparse hair really is snow white) take more interest in boxing than the diamond game? The answer is emphatic:

"No. I'm very interested in fights but I still think more about the game in which I spent 22 years. But there is a feeling of satisfaction in knowing you've had something to do with building up boxing."

COMPLAINT FELL ON UNSYMPATHETIC EARS

SAN FRANCISCO—(AP)—Umpires Bill Englen and Frisco Ed-bards, working a Coast league baseball game here, discovered a thief had broken into their locker room and stolen their money.

Outraged they rushed to Leroy O'Doul, manager of the San Francisco Seals.

"We've been robbed!" they screamed as they rushed into his office.

"How amusing," was O'Doul's comment. "Imagine a couple of robbers complaining about being robbed."

Wildcat Golf Star Leading

Dick Haskell Paces College Tournament.

SOUTH BEND, Ind.—(INS)—Dick Haskell of Northwestern university, leading the field by two strokes, was shooting for a possible new qualifying record today as the 45th national intercollegiate golf tournament moved into its second and final trial round at the South Bend Country club.

Haskell, 26-year-old June graduate, stroked the club's Chain O'Lakes course in a brilliant 68 which was two under par.

The Purple tee ace was out in 34, two shots under the regulation figures and fashioned himself an even-par 35 on his homeward journey. Haskell's outgoing nine card, however did not elude the performance of Earl Stewart, Louisiana State's defending champion. Stewart, who last year snared the driving contest and the medalist honors, took the first nine in a sizzling four-under par 32 but trouble found him on the back nine which he closed with a birdie and a depressing 39 for a 71 total.

Matching Stewart's 71 were five other collegians who have to be reckoned with before the title is settled Saturday. They were Charlie Lind, Denver's Big Seven champion, Bob Beekman of Stanford, who annexed the Pacific Coast conference title; the University of Baltimore's Eddie Johnson; Ray Brownell of Stanford, who reached the 1941 finals; and George Traphagen, another Stanford entrant.

The University of Stanford squad was making another strong bid for the team championship which will be decided today along with the 64 qualifiers for the individual championship match play bracket.

At the half-way mark, the Indians who last year set an amazing record of 580 for 36-holes of medal play, held the narrow lead of 291 against Louisiana State's 292. Northwestern was two strokes behind with 293 while Minnesota and Yale trailed with 295 and 296, respectively.

First round qualifying scores of Ohio entrants posted yesterday: Robert Drummond Oberlin, 35-34-72; John Carlisle, Oberlin, 35-34-72; Billy Gilbert, Ohio State, 40-34-74; Charles Knab, Cincinnati, 36-33-75; Johnny Krisko, Ohio State, 38-38-77; Richard Holmes, Oberlin, 40-38-78; John Seckle, Ohio State, 43-36-74; Dick Peterson, Ohio State, 43-39-82.

SOLDIERS FIND A MOTHER WHO WILL DARN SOX
'Mom' Wilcox Has Won the Hearts of Marines in Honolulu.
(By United Press)
HONOLULU, T. H.—Until Mrs. Harriet D. Wilcox came along most of the soldiers in Honolulu just threw their socks away when they got holes in the heel or their big toes began protruding. Now "Mom" Wilcox has taken the situation over and is the champion sock darning in the territory.
Mom, small, gray-haired and matronly, came here from Berkeley several months ago, and she and her husband immediately opened their little home to the armed forces, telling the boys to "make themselves at home."
The marines, being the first gang anywhere, wound out about the Wilcox home first; then the word got around that anybody in a uniform could walk in, peel off their shirts, raid the icebox and make themselves right at home and forget the war for a few minutes. That was how Mrs. Wilcox found out about the sock problem.
"Several of the boys got to talking about socks one day," she said, "and one of them asked me if I'd show him how to darn a pair. I never realized until then what a tough time the fellows were having with their socks. I offered to do this lads darning for him and I've had a steady job of it ever since."
"It's really nothing," she blushed, "but I can do it well and it gives the boys an excuse to come around and Mr. Wilcox and I like to know them and have them around."
Mom Wilcox's idea is to give the army and navy a taste of the home life they knew back on the mainland and she's doing an admirable job of it.
Her biggest problem is to get the socks before the holes get too big. "It's hard to make some of these young fellows realize the truth of the old adage 'a stitch in time saves nine,'" she said, "and some of the holes brought me for darning are the size of post holes."
Her ambition is to start sock darning centers in which those young men living near army and navy bases capable of handling a needle and darning thread will offer their services to the enlisted men.
"An army might travel on its stomach," she said, "but it will move much more comfortably on a darned sock instead of one with a hole in it. If all the women would get together and offer to darn the boys' socks it would make military life a lot simpler for them all besides saving them plenty of money which they can't afford to spend for new socks."

Predicts Vast Expansion Of Army Air Corps
DENVER, Colo. (U.P.)—Vast expansion of the United States Army Air Corps within the next few months is predicted by Major General John F. Curry.
The high-ranking officer recently relinquished his post as head of the nation's civil air patrol and came to Denver from Washington, D. C., to assume command of district No. 4 of the reorganized army air corps technical training division. He has charge of all army air corps technical training schools west of the Mississippi river.
The secretary of war has said that the army air corps will be expanded from about 300,000 men to between one and two million as soon as this program can be carried out. General Curry declared, "This means that every technical school in the country must be expanded accordingly, both in personnel and training facilities."
He added that almost unbelievable expansion will be underway within a few months.

TRAFFIC TOLL UP IN BRITAIN
Survey Reveals War Tends To Encourage Reckless Motor Operation.
(By United Press)
WASHINGTON—The Federal Bureau of Investigation reports that a study of a huge traffic death increase in Britain shows war has a tendency to encourage reckless driving.
Figures recently received by the FBI disclose that in Britain's second war year, September, 1940, to August, 1941, 10,072 persons were killed in traffic accidents, an increase of 51.9 per cent over the corresponding pre-war period.
Fifty-three per cent of all victims were pedestrians. Deaths of this type, involving persons over 15, jumped 81.5 per cent over the pre-war year, while the number involving children 15 years and younger increased 52.3 per cent.
"The English traffic statistics," the FBI reported in its law enforcement bulletin, "reflects that while accidents were fewer they were more deadly and generally resulted from five factors in addition to the recklessness which war has a tendency to encourage."
These factors were listed as follows:
1—Heavier character of road traffic.
2—Faster driving (frequently necessary on the part of the military).
3—Lower driving standards.
4—Fewer traffic police.
5—Bad mechanical condition of some vehicles.
The FBI now is conducting traffic schools throughout the country for the purpose of instructing low enforcement agencies in handling wartime traffic. All the factors listed as contributory causes in Britain are receiving special attention.

Advices Co-Eds To Wed Only If They Are Ready
BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (U.P.)—Marry if you are ready for matrimony, but don't wed if you are not prepared, was the advice on war marriages given by Mrs. Ruth O. McCarn, counselor to women at Northwestern university.
"There is no simple rule or principle for a good marriage," she said. "There are hazards in all marriages and war increases these hazards. But, even so, we marry on faith."
"In the years ahead, it is going to be increasingly difficult to work out our relationships with men, due to men and women being called for the armed forces and for industrial defense work," Mrs. McCarn said. "There will be dislocation of families and delinquencies are bound to result."
Mrs. McCarn expressed the hope that all Indiana university co-eds marry.
"But marry wisely," she advised. "One of the great advantages of a co-educational institution is that it can serve as a matrimonial bureau."

STEADIER TONE DEVELOPED BY STOCK MARKET

Loans to Commerce, Industry and Agriculture Resume Previous Decline.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Stocks took on a steadier tone in today's market in the wake of Monday's sharp decline on the war news.

At a quiet opening fractional advances were posted for Standard Oil (N.J.), General Motors, Chrysler, Dodge, and General Motors.

Financial officials noted the federal reserve compilation disclosing loans to commerce, industry and agriculture by member banks in 11 cities resumed the decline in the week ended last Wednesday. For that period the total was off $9,000,000 after showing an increase in the preceding week.

Holders of oil company shares were mildly encouraged by the recommendation of Petroleum Co. coordinator Jakes that oil production in July be stepped up 200,000 barrels daily over the June rate.

many people are still in doubt about the exact meaning of price-freezing. It does not mean that prices are exactly the same everywhere. It does mean that prices in each store are fixed at the levels which prevailed in that store at a given time. Find out where prices have been fixed at the most reasonable levels. The need for thrift compels every American to buy where he can get the most value for his money.
